

92d Congress and Old Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Congress convened today to face the lingering problems of the old, confront an ambitious agenda of home-front proposals promised by President Nixon—and begin shaping the politics of 1972.

Among the first acts was the installation of Democratic Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma as the House new speaker.

A filibuster about filibusters loomed in the Senate. The Senate's Democratic majority and Republican minority called caucuses to elect party floor leaders and talk about reform, as critics of the seniority system sought to loosen its traditional hold on committee power.

Byrd, who has been quietly trying to line up the votes to move up the leadership ladder, was not saying whether he will in fact run against Kennedy.

Senate Republicans, too, faced a question-mark contest. In that one, Minority Leader Hugh Scott said he had the votes and an ample cushion to win re-election.

Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee has been hunting support for a challenge to Scott, but stopped short of announcing his candidacy, since he didn't want to run unless he was almost certain of winning.

Democrats there already had chosen Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana to become majority leader, succeeding Albert. The Oklahoma congressman was to be formally elected speaker, to succeed John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, who retired.

Nixon said he will send Congress "the most comprehensive, the most far-reaching, most bold domestic program ever presented."

He said the State of the Union message he will deliver to Congress, and by television and radio to the nation, Friday night "will be only the beginning."

Those proposals will go to a Congress still firmly under Democratic command. The new Senate is a shade more conservative than the old, the new House is nine seats more Democratic.

The lineup in the Senate will be 55 to 45, in the House, 254 to 180.

But the Senate still looms as Nixon's greater problem, particularly as the 1972 presidential campaign season approaches.

Legislation that didn't make it through the 91st Congress died with adjournment on Jan. 2. Now the committees must be reorganized to go to work on new measures.

There is an ample supply of leftover issues waiting for action by the 92nd Congress, with a Social Security increase and President Nixon's family-assistance plan for welfare reform atop the agenda. Congressional leaders have pledged prompt action on those measures.

Nixon's State of the Union message is expected to feature a proposal that the federal government send a share of its tax revenues back to the states and cities, and a program of health-care reform.

In addition, Congress will have to face before April a renewal of the battle over financing development of the super-sonic transport aircraft, an issue that snarled House and Senate in the latter days of the last session.

House Democrats and Republicans have taken first steps to loosen the grip of the seniority system on committee assignments, but no big changes are likely for a while.

Acting in separate party caucuses Wednesday, the two parties approved new rules giving members a vote on committee chairmen who now are selected solely on the basis of seniority.

Democrats also limited each member to one subcommittee chairmanship, a move that will open up about 40 prized chairmanships to junior members.

Republicans, whose caucus was marked by a close fight between conservatives and liberals over a top party office, finished their work but Democrats adjourned a 12-hour session still not ready for the opening of the 92nd congress at noon today.

Although seniority changes approved by each party are minimal, their adoption is a triumph for younger members who pushed for the reforms against stubborn resistance by party elders.

Kennedy Loses Post As Democratic Whip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts was ousted from his post as Senate Democratic whip by Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia today minutes before the new 92nd Congress began.

The vote in Byrd's favor was 31 to 24, according to one of the senators.

The result started the new session on a note of surprise and was viewed as a sharp setback to any presidential ambitions Kennedy might have in the future.

At a Senate Republican caucus, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania was re-elected as GOP leader by a narrow, 24-to-20, vote margin over Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee. Scott had won 24 to 19, over Baker two years ago.

The Senate leadership fights in separate caucuses got the new Congress rolling, with President Nixon also being challenged on his Southeast Asia policies.

At the Democratic caucus where Kennedy was ousted, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield charged that Nixon was broadening the air war in Cambodia beyond the intent of Congress.

Mansfield noted the Cooper-Church amendment of last session which put limits on U.S. combat involvement in Cambodia and declared: "Recent news accounts suggest a stretched and, perhaps distorted, interpretation of the intent of that legislation."

At a caucus this morning, Senate Republicans agreed to accept new Sen. James L.

Buckley of New York into the party ranks. Buckley, elected as the Conservative Party candidate last November, was challenged on the move by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

The vote on his admission was 36 to 3.

On the House side of the Capitol, a group of antiwar congressmen came up with a resolution demanding withdrawal of U. S. troops from Indochina by June 30.

A private group of antiwar activists gathered on the Capitol steps to demonstrate peacefully against the war.

In the Democratic voting, Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, was elected to succeed Byrd as secretary of the Democratic Conference, making him third in the leadership hierarchy behind Mansfield and Byrd.

Kennedy held the second spot just one term. In a Christmas week coup two years ago, he rallied sufficient support to oust Sen. Russell B. Long, a conservative Louisiana Democrat.

Byrd's strength in the Democratic caucus was concealed to the last moment. Kennedy confidently claimed victory in private talks with his Democratic colleagues as late as Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania retained the Senate Republican leadership today, defeating 24 to 20 a move to unseat him by Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

Scott's margin over Baker, 45-year-old son-in-law of the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., was almost exactly the same as the 24-19 victory he scored over the Tennessee senator in first winning the leadership in 1969.

Even after the Republican conference had started, Baker said he was undecided about making the race.

He told reporters before the closed session he thought the count stood 20 to 18 in his favor with 6 undecided, while Scott was predicting he would receive from 28 to 30 of the GOP vote.

They earlier had said only one regiment was cut off. In other developments, the South Vietnamese government announced today it will observe a 24-hour cease-fire for the Tet lunar new year from sundown Jan. 26 until sundown Jan. 27.

U. S. and other allied forces will honor the one-day stand-down. The Communists already have said they will hold a four-day Tet cease-fire beginning Jan. 26. The cease-fire affects only South Vietnam, not Cambodia.

The U. S. command said 37 Americans died in battle in Indochina last week and 211 were injured. The toll the week before was 27 with 83 injured. U. S. spokesmen said they could not explain the rise in casualties.

The South Vietnamese said their casualties dropped to 232 dead and 764 wounded compared to 277 dead and 688 wounded the week before. The allies claimed 1,361 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese dead during the same period.

Cambodians, Viets Link Up in Drive

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian troops broke through Viet Cong and North Vietnamese encirclement today to recapture the last Communist-held segment of Cambodia's lifeline to the sea. Jubilant Cambodian soldiers raised their flag over Pich Nil Pass and danced on the shell-pocked Highway 4.

"Chhayo! Chhayo! (Hurray! Hurray!) the Cambodian soldiers shouted, scrambling to the roof of the summer palace of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk on the side of Pich Nil Mountain, waving the Cambodian flag triumphantly.

The Cambodian victory climaxed a four-day battle around Pich Nil and came only a few hours after the 3,000 Cambodian troops had been surrounded by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, who had swept in behind them and cut them off.

peace negotiators met for the 100th time today with U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce accusing the Communists of deliberately withholding information on captured Americans held in secret prison camps in South Vietnam.

The Communists did not boycott the session despite U.S. bombing raids on North Vietnam over the weekend. On two earlier occasions such bombing led to boycotts.

"Why is it you refuse to provide any information whatsoever on the men you hold in South Vietnam?" Bruce asked Hanoi's Xuan Thuy and Viet Cong Foreign Minister Madame Nguyen Thi Binh.

The American ambassador said, "last week a press spokesman for your side admitted to possessing such information. He could find no plausible excuse for not revealing it."

Madame Binh blamed the deadlock in the talks on the United States refusal to pull out all its forces unilaterally from South Vietnam and overthrow the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon, the key Communist demands.

Bruce called on the Communists to open their prisoner of war camps to inspection by impartial observers.

Bruce said their refusal to allow such inspections, to provide any information, or permit mail to flow between the captured Americans and their families leads to the conclusion that "you fear what would be revealed through such visits."

"There is perhaps nothing which so clearly demonstrates the hollowness of your side's claims to authority and responsibility in South Vietnam than this refusal to make the slightest effort to live up to legal and humanitarian standards recognized by civilized people everywhere," Bruce said.

Last week, the Communists refused to accept a list of American servicemen missing in Southeast Asia. Bruce told the Communists today "I will continue to make your disgraceful performance a part of the record of these meetings until you fulfill your obligations on the prisoner issue."

Asked in an interview if it were possible to violate the spirit of a law without actually violating the law, Cooper replied: "I think you're correct on that. If you violate the spirit you have to violate the act

Cambodia of use of U.S. aircraft and airmen in support of South Vietnamese and Cambodian operations, or for carrying supplies, "I certainly think it is a violation of the spirit of the amendment," Cooper said.

Cooper was co-author with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, of a law enacted in the waning days of the 91st Congress, and subsequently signed by Nixon, that prohibited use of U.S. funds for American ground troops or advisers in Cambodia.

Tuna Sales Undaunted

The Area Doesn't Scare Easily

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
Charlie, that frustrated tuna fish who couldn't buy his way to the grocer's shelf, may be getting a second chance from Kingston area consumers.

A recent survey of stores and shoppers in and around Kingston indicates that housewives did not panic at news that some brands of fresh fish contained dangerous portions of mercury. While sales slumped briefly when government scientists made the announcement shortly before Christmas, it now appears that the crisis was quickly forgotten.

Swordfish sales, too, have diminished only slightly since scientists claimed that many fish tested were contaminated with the chemical.

A major factor for the "bravery" displayed by area housewives is, in all probability, the accompanying claims that the mercury pollution, while higher than allowable federal standards, is still slight, and that only continuous and substantial ingestion can cause fatal or damaging illness.

As it turned out, the federal government, through the Food and Drug Administration, decided that contamination was limited to just a few "obscure" brands. Most recently, it was decided that only between one and two per cent of all the tuna fish tested showed excessive quantities of mercury contamination.

Early announcement suggested that as much as 20 per cent of all tuna fish was contaminated with mercury but area housewives charged on undaunted. Of the more than dozen stores contacted, only a handful admitted that they experienced a significant decline in sales. Apparently those hardest hit were the "chain store" supermarkets. The grocery manager at one of the larger stores in Kingston, who requested that his establishments remain unnamed, said "The people have been cautious; they're not purchasing tuna fish as readily as before." He added that the "mercury scare" has had a noticeable effect on the overall fish market, but less of an effect on the fresh fish sales.

Shops-Rite officials reported less of a reduction in tuna sales. "It hasn't been too extreme," The Freeman was told, "and it's certainly not as bad as the cyclamate scare several months ago."

Small grocery owners reported no slump in sales because of the government warnings. Some of the comments made by proprietors and workers include:

Barringer's Grocery: "There has been no decline in tuna fish sales. The people don't appear to be worried. They keep requesting fresh fish and we keep ordering fresh fish."

Governor Clinton Market: "We've experienced no change here."

Green's Grocery: "It hasn't been particularly noticeable, probably because we carry a good brand."

Teetzel's: "Nothing different. If you buy something good, you'll get something good; if you buy something cheap, you'll get stuck."

Since most people object to "getting stuck," they've begun to take the safe way out: by purchasing "name" brands despite the few extra pennies in price. Government officials have recommended this alternative, since most nationally advertised brands have not failed the mercury test.

Prospects for connoisseurs of swordfish meat, however, appear to be grim. Even though sales have not diminished markedly in this area, scientists are predicting that the mercury contamination may become so severe that the fish will have to be eliminated entirely from the American diet.

County Murder Trial Four Prosecution Witnesses Testify

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON
Four prosecution witnesses testified Wednesday before County Judge Raymond J. Mino and a jury as the murder trial of Charles Culhane, 25, and Gerald McGivern, 26, of the Bronx, continued in County Court.

McGivern and Culhane are accused of the murder of William Fitzgerald, 63, a Westchester County deputy sheriff, during a shootout on the Thruway in the Town of Plattekill on the afternoon of Sept. 13, 1968. Culhane, McGivern and a third Auburn prison inmate, 25-year-old Robert Bowerman, were being transported to White Plains to testify at a hearing when the deputy and Bowerman were shot to death.

Before court recessed until 9:30 a.m. today, Sergeant William Garry, a state police ballistics expert from Albany, testified that he made tests of two .38 caliber revolvers, expended bullets and other articles in evidence. The witness testified that the tests determined that the bullet that killed Fitzgerald came from Singer's gun, the bullet that killed Bowerman had been fired from Fitzgerald's gun, and a bullet that wounded Culhane during the incident also had been fired from the late deputy's gun.

Denis Kebabjian, senior chemist at the state police laboratory, testified that he had examined clothing that reportedly had been worn by Culhane, McGivern, Bowerman and the two deputies at the time of the shootout. The witness said that the results of tests made of blood found on the clothing showed only type "O". He explained that a mixture of other types of blood could produce type "O".

Kebabjian testified under cross-examination by defense counsel that the clothes that had been turned over to him by Senior Investigator Charles Teelon, who had charge of the investigation of the murder case from the beginning, had been kept in a vault in the state police laboratory.

Preceding the two state police witnesses was Dr. Arnold Goran of the staff of St. Francis' Hospital in Poughkeepsie. He testified under direct examination by Assistant District Attorney James H. Kerr that on the afternoon of the shooting, he performed surgery on Culhane to remove a bullet from the defendant's head back of the left ear.

Dr. Goran testified that from his examination, the bullet would have had to come from above and in front of Culhane. He also said he treated Culhane for an injury to his hand. The witness also testified that tests showed Culhane's blood was A positive.

Investigator Teelon faced lengthy direct examination by Kerr and cross-examination by Jules of glass he said came from Joshua N. Koplovitz, counsel for a broken window of the car in McGivern and Paul Vladimir, which the shooting incident occurred for Culhane. Teelon curred. He also identified several items in evidence including handcuff sets that dence that included expended had been worn by the three bullets and pieces and part-mates.

Fish Supports Seniority System Reforms

WASHINGTON
Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. has announced his support of reforms in the House of Representatives' seniority system, adopted and approved Wednesday by House Republican members.

In announcing that a "substantial modification of the seniority system was adopted by the House Republican conference Wednesday." Fish explained that "committee chairmen will be selected by the entire Republican House membership by secret ballot," when "we become the majority party."

"Seniority on committees, as of today, is no longer the sole criterion, but merely a factor among many in the selection of committee leadership," added Fish.

The reform, the first since 1910, according to Fish, came as a result of efforts by the Republican Task Force on Seniority chaired by Representative Barber Conable of Rochester.

With the reforms, claims Fish, "The Republican Party of the House of Representatives has moved to the forefront of congressional reforms." He added that the move "is an important step in making the Congress a more responsive body."

Another City Burglary Arrest

KINGSTON
Detectives have made a second arrest in the continued investigation of a series of burglaries in the city which previously resulted in the arrest of a 20-year-old youth, according to Lieutenant Charles McCullough.

Arrested Wednesday by Detectives Joseph Feraca and John Crespiro was 32-year-old Howard R. Dawson of Port Ewen. He was booked for third degree burglary and grand larceny third degree. Dawson was held for City Court appearance.

Previously taken into custody by detectives was Frederick Baxter Monroe, of 21 Broadway. He was accused of participating in 17 burglaries at homes and business places in Kingston in the last several months. According to McCullough, the grand larceny count against Dawson involves the alleged theft of two television sets, a TV stand and other items from Scholar's on Central Broadway on Oct. 9. The articles had a total value of $554, police said. The burglary count accuses Dawson of entering the Mission Wood Products building last Sept. 21 and taking four kitchen ranges valued at $167/693 Broadway early today. The each. Three of the stoves have been recovered, McCullough noted. The lieutenant said Monroe also is involved in the Scholar's and Mission Wood incidents. Meanwhile, police reported the arrest of a 24-year-old New Jersey man, who allegedly entered the apartment of Norman Gaffney at the rear of Court.

Rochester Planners Elect a Chairman

ROCHESTER
Wednesday's regular meeting of the Town of Rochester Planning Board included the election of two new officers and a brief discussion on the Board's authority to review the recently approved trailer park ordinance. Sam Reavin was elected chairman of the Planning Board to replace John Scibano, who remained on the Board as a member. Richard Sherman was elected vice chairman and Lester VanKleeck was re-elected to the post of secretary. Planning Board members later discussed whether they, rather than the Town Board, should have the authority to review new regulations, with discussion on the matter centering around the recently passed trailer ordinance.

Several Board members indicated their feelings that any large layout should be reviewed by the Planning Board because, according to Scibano, "It might conflict with the rest of the town's development plans." In other matters, the Planning Board discussed the approaching public hearing on a new zoning ordinance for the Town. That hearing will be held in March, at a date to be announced later.

Quantity printing procedures of the new subdivision regulations, for eventual distribution to subdividers in the area, was also discussed.

Innocent Plea In County Court On Drug Charges

KINGSTON
Charged with three counts involving dangerous drugs, Donald Tynan, 21, of Birchwood Road, South, Saugerties, pleaded innocent Wednesday afternoon before County Judge Raymond J. Mino. His case was adjourned until Jan. 27 and bail was fixed at $500. Tynan was arrested on a bench warrant by State Police. He is charged with criminal sale of dangerous drugs — hashish — third degree, and criminal possession of dangerous drugs fourth and sixth degree. The defendant was indicted by the grand jury on Oct. 20.

Rocky Proposes Low Deficiency Budget

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Governor Rockefeller has proposed a record low $14 million deficiency budget that includes just enough money for raises for himself and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson and a loan for the massive South Mall construction project.

The spending program sent to the legislature Wednesday pays for costs not anticipated when the regular $7.25 billion 1970-71 budget was drawn up a year ago. This year it included the governor's $35,000 raise in pay — to $85,000 — voted by the legislature two years ago. Wilson's salary increased by 50 per cent, from $30,000 to $45,000. There was no explanation why the increase approved two years ago was not included in the regular budget. It did not take effect until the first of this year. Also included was a $130.4 million "first instance" appropriation, or loan, for the South Mall state office building project in Albany. Since the state will eventually pay this money back, it does not count in the $14 million total deficiency budget.

The Mall money will bring the total cost of the gigantic project up to nearly $800 million. Top state officials have admitted in the past, however, that the pricetag will hit $1 billion or more when it's completed.

The big items in the deficiency included $3.9 million in social security payments for state workers, $1.8 million more for the scholar incentive program and $1.5 million for methadone treatment for narcotics addicts. Also included was $1.36 million for state automobiles.

Rockefeller said this money was needed because the state has not replaced vehicles as quickly as it should have over the past two years. In addition, the car manufacturers are no longer giving a fleet discount, and the price for a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth is increasing from $1,655 to $2,067 when the state goes shopping. The state plans to purchase an additional 895 cars by the end of March. Many of these will replace vehicles that have already reached the 75,000-mile deadline.

Another "loan" that doesn't count in the budget total will pay $9.5 million to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority to alleviate the financial problem of the Long Island Railroad. This is an advance in lieu of funds owed to the railroad by localities it serves. The MTA will receive another $7.5 million in the deficiency budget for construction of passenger station improvements along the Hudson and Harlem divisions of the Penn Central Railroad.

Finally, Rockefeller included a $3,000 "lulu" for Dr. T. Norman Hurd, who was recently promoted to the post of Director of State Operations. The money, paid in lieu of expenses, was necessary because the new state post previously carried no expense allocation.

PBA Raps Lindsay Over Penalties

NEW YORK (UPI) — The patrolmen's union has charged Mayor John V. Lindsay is invoking penalties against its members to destroy the organization and to further the mayor's alleged ambition to become president of the United States.

Edward Kiernan, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association (PBA) said Wednesday Lindsay's threat of penalties under the state's Taylor Law was "one of the most ill-timed, ill-conceived and inflammatory statements in history."

Under the law, which prohibits strikes by public employees, each patrolman who refused assignments during the six-day wildcat strike could lose from $320 to $480, depending on how long he had participated in the job action.

Kiernan said "there will be no docking of any patrolman's pay," and said he would fight any such fines in the courts.

Stating he did not know why Lindsay "wants a police strike," he urged his men to hold the line and stay on the job and not give the mayor "what he wants: the presidency of the United States, the destruction of the PBA, and the ruin of New York City."

Kiernan's angry remarks were in response to an earlier statement by Lindsay announcing the city was proceeding immediately to invoke what he called "the mandatory penalties of the state Taylor Law against those members of the Police Department who participated in the illegal work stoppage."

Lindsay has maintained that no local municipality had the legal right to ignore the Taylor Law under which the patrolmen could also lose tenure and be put on probation for a year.

Another threat hanging over the heads of potential strikers was that of suspension by Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy.

Murphy, who had remained relatively in the background during the job action, told a news conference "any member of the police force refusing to perform his assigned duties will be suspended."

Asked if such a policy could result in the suspension of all of the city's 25,000 patrolmen in the event of another wildcat strike, Murphy said such a situation would not develop because "we will have outside assistance" before it does.

He was presumably referring to his statement earlier in the week saying help by the National Guard would be requested if the patrolmen had failed to return to their jobs in a few days.

The strike, over the issue of "parity pay", now being heard in State Supreme Court, ended Tuesday by a 2-1 vote of PBA delegates.

New Yorkers took the strike in stride with no appreciable increase in crime partly due perhaps to the bitter cold weather this week which has kept people off the streets.

CHURCHILL STATUE — Workmen maneuver eight-foot, bronze statue of the late Sir Winston Churchill into place in lobby of U. S. Embassy in London. The statue, to be eventually a part of the Churchill Memorial and Library in Fulton, Missouri, will be given its first public showing at the embassy beginning today. Welfare Workers Ordered Suspended

NEW YORK (UPI) — A welfare mother and her four children were moved out of their $70-a-night rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Wednesday and the three city employees who had booked them there were suspended. The mother said she didn't care that much for the elegant hotel.

Mayor John V. Lindsay said sending Mrs. Cleole Hainsworth and her children, aged 10 to 18, to the Park Avenue hotel showed "colossal bad judgment or worse" and may have been done with "malicious intent." He ordered the employees' suspension.

The Hainsworths were put up in the Waldorf Tuesday when the Human Resources Administration could not find other accommodations. A hotel spokesman said the rent was paid until checkout time today and they could have stayed, but they moved out Wednesday into the home of a woman friend. Mrs. Hainsworth had wanted to go there in the first place. "They (Welfare officials) said a flat 'no,'" she said.

Mrs. Hainsworth called the Waldorf rooms "very nice," but said she preferred the Manhattan Beach Hotel in Brooklyn, where the family had been living for the past month. "It was very beautiful," she said. "We even had a sun porch."

She also preferred the maid service in the Brooklyn hotel. The hotel in Brooklyn told her to leave Tuesday because it needed the room for other guests. An HRA office in Brooklyn could not find rooms in any hotels on the list approved for welfare clients and made the arrangements at the Waldorf.

The Hainsworth family has been without a home for three months since the foundation of the apartment where they had

Battle Begins

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The right of women legislators to wear maxi-dresses and pants suits has emerged as one of the first battles in the 1971 Nevada legislative session.

Assembly Speaker Lawrence Jacobson was greeted by criticism from six angry female lawmakers Tuesday after he decreed maxis and pants suits would not be tolerated in the assembly.

$950 Million in Federal Grants Sought for Public Works Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was asked today to approve $950 million in federal grants for public works projects in areas of severe unemployment.

In communities with at least 8.75 per cent unemployment last year, the bill would allow the federal government to finance 80 per cent of the cost of permanent public facilities ready for construction.

In a nod to the financially depressed construction industry, preference would be given projects in which a high percentage of building costs would be for labor.

Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., introduced the bill in the House on the opening day of the 92nd Congress and said he expects 150 House members to sign the bill.

The Senate version will be sponsored by Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., chairman of the Public Works Committee.

The bill is a liberalized version of an antirecession public works measure introduced last year by House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

The new bill eliminates two sections which came under attack last year. One would have limited a states share of the public works fund to 10 per cent. The other would have required states or local subdivisions to guarantee the subsidized project would not cause a reduction in other planned construction.

The $950 million would remain authorized until spent, with no time limit, in areas whose unemployment rate was 150 per cent of the national average in either of the two most recent fiscal years.

The present national rate of unemployment is 6 per cent of the labor force; thus the grants would be available in areas with an 8.75 per cent rate.

Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., a co-sponsor of the bill, also urged President Nixon to release withheld public works construction funds for federal projects.

He said $25 million appropriated by Congress for construction projects for the current fiscal year has been frozen by executive order, while one out of every three construction workers in the nation is out of work.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress opened today amidst renewed unrest about the continued U.S. role in Indochina that marked the last session.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, demanded an inquiry by the Foreign Relations Committee on whether the Nixon administration's expansion of U.S. military activity in Cambodia violates limitations enacted at the end of the 91st Congress.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., was quoted as saying more than 1,000 Thai troops, aided by U.S. logistical support have been sent into southern Laos. Such a move risks "growing American embroilment" and could jeopardize hopes for continued U.S. troop withdrawal from Vietnam, Mondale declared.

An aide to a Republican senator on the Foreign Relations Committee who asked not be named said the current use of helicopter gunboats and other aircraft in Cambodia could lead to new effort by the 92nd Congress to restrict U.S. air actions there.

Church, a committee member and author with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., of the amendment that barred U.S. combat ground troops and military advisers from Cambodia, requested the committee probe in a statement Wednesday.

At the same time, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird defended the U.S. air role in the current South Vietnamese-Cambodian drive to open a highway linking the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh with the sea.

"We have this authority spelled out in congressional authorization," Laird told a Pentagon news conference.

He did not specify the source of the authorization. A proposal to limit U.S. air activity over Cambodia, contained in an earlier Cooper-Church amendment that was approved by the Senate but blocked by the House, was dropped from the measure passed last month and signed by President Nixon.

The aide to the GOP senator said the administration's reliance on this omission "is just inviting us" to pass additional restrictions.

The Pentagon said it was unaware of any Thai ground troops operating in Laos.

Strict Orders for U.S. Pilots From Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials say U.S. pilots are under orders to avoid population centers and temples while supporting friendly ground troops in Cambodia.

Meanwhile, it was learned in Saigon U.S. advisers and South Vietnamese officers are traveling together on command helicopters in Cambodia, occasionally setting foot on the ground.

Sources familiar with South Vietnamese troop movements said U.S. advisers usually spend no more than 10 or 15 minutes on the ground, landing only for a briefing or for map coordination.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim refused comment on the report. He said earlier in the week there were no U.S. advisers in Cambodia, in the air or on the ground.

In spelling out limitations on U.S. air policy in Southeast Asia, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Wednesday:

"There are certain protections written into orders; there are certain controls that are written into those orders."

Officials said pilots are ordered to hit only military targets and to avoid civilian casualties and damage to religious structures.

There are indications U.S. bombing operations also are limited in areas near the borders of Thailand and that such attacks are carried out only after consultation with Thai officials.

This may be a major reason for reported Communist efforts to convert two Cambodian provinces along the Thai border. Pursat and Battam Bang, into sanctuaries for troop training and rest.

Pentagon officials indicated time limits are applied to authorizations for air attacks in specific areas. This, they said, is a device for maintaining a command bridle over air operations.

Where Laird formerly talked mainly of "interdiction" of enemy supply and troop movements, he now speaks in broader terms of "air support," obviously including close air cover for friendly troops and transporting them into battle.

Laird indicated U.S. air power is being thrown into the Cambodian fighting to supplement the growing South Vietnamese air force and that he does not expect such air support to continue for several years.

Laird contended such air operations fall within authority of legislation enacted by Congress. This drew a quick challenge from Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Church called for a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to hear testimony from Laird, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chief of Staff.

Oil Spill Spreads Along the Coastline

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The massive spill from a ruptured tanker spread up and down the Pacific coastline today, and thousands of volunteers struggled to keep gooey black balls of oil away from the nesting grounds of the rare white egrets and blue herons.

Cleanup crews aboard barges equipped with vacuum hoses worked to suck oil from San Francisco Bay, and tidal action carried great quantities of the heavy bunker oil out the Golden Gate, where it spread along 60 miles of coastline.

At Bolinas Lagoon volunteers worked through the night to spread out a pontoon bridge in an effort to keep the oil from invading the last nesting site of colonies of great blue herons and white egrets.

"The operation so far has been successful," said Russ Revere, an assistant at the marine biology station at Bolinas. "We'll just have to wait and see if it works."

Revere said so far there were no reports of egrets or herons coated with oil. He said volunteers working around the clock at the marine station had cleaned over 500 other shore and sea birds.

Further up the coast, ribbons and blobs of oil drifted onto the sand at Pt. Reyes National Seashore, coating about three miles of wilderness beaches.

Women for Highway Safety

Forty million American women, welded together as a lobby for highway safety, can drive the drunken driver off the road and make driving safe for the rest of us. That was the battle cry issued by John A. Volpe, Secretary of Transportation, to representatives of 145 women's organizations called to Washington.

Volpe called for pressure on courts, police departments, attorneys general, governors and legislatures, for stricter enforcement of laws on drunken driving. Put them on the spot, he said. Get them to identify and treat known problem drinkers. Ask them what they are doing to get the drunk off the highway. If they slack off, let them know you think more ought to be done. As a former Governor of Massachusetts, Volpe said he knew full well the power and influence of strong-willed civic minded women.

"What I'm really asking you to do is to become a people's lobby for highway safety," Volpe said. "You'll be lobbying for the most precious thing the Lord gave us. You'll be lobbying for life."

One law that has had considerable effect on drunken driving is known as the consent law, which requires anyone arrested on suspicion of drunken driving to take a Breathalyzer test. Refusal results in suspension of the driver's license. Illinois is considering such a law. If passed, it will leave only Mississippi, Montana, Wyoming and the District of Columbia without implied consent legislation.

Women organizations have been working in this field for some years. With the blessing of the Nixon administration, they should begin to get better results, for it is still true that drunken driving is involved in half the fatalities on the road. Therefore, banning the drunken and drinking driver off the road can help save more than 25,000 lives each year.

Suit to Cut Elections Costs

The citizens lobby Common Cause has sued the major political parties, charging they violate the 1925 elections law, saying that law was never enforced, and asking for enforceable limits of spending in federal elections for President and Congress.

John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause and former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a news conference that the raising and spending of huge sums for candidates in disregard of existing law has produced "virtually a national scandal." He added that this has brought the nation perilously close to the time when only the rich or those beholden to them can run for federal office.

The law limits contributions to a candidate for President or Congress to $5,000, but Gardner said campaign organizations got around these limits with a multiplicity of dummy committees to which supporters contributed $5,000 each for themselves, their wives and children. Thus the limit of $3 million for a presidential candidate was multiplied 10 times.

The main purpose of the suit is to prod Congress into reforming the law. A number of comprehensive reform bills are being prepared. Gardner wants any reform bill to provide full disclosure of contributors and spending, fix a spending ceiling, provide some federal subsidy to ease the cost and some tax incentive to encourage small contributions. These are all ideas that have been widely discussed, but so far shunned by Congress.

The British are taking no chances with the auto passengers who don't fasten their seat belts. They have developed a belt that automatically wraps around the occupant when the door is closed. If the British get one, we can't be far behind. Good thing, for it does save lives.

Among the Casualties

David Lawrence Says Muskie's Views Changed About Troop Withdrawals

WASHINGTON — Does a United States Senator have to go all the way to Europe and the Middle East to find out the fundamental points on which American foreign policy is based?

Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Democrat, says after a visit to Israel, Egypt, the Soviet Union and West Germany that his views have "changed somewhat" and that he is "having second thoughts" about a unilateral withdrawal of U.S. forces from Europe. Previously he has been a supporter of the resolution by Senator Mike Mansfield, Democratic floor leader, who wants to bring a substantial number of U.S. troops home.

Mr. Muskie, in a news conference on his return from the trip, declared that troop withdrawal is tied in other developments — West Germany's efforts to improve relations with the Warsaw pact nations, talks on the status of Berlin, the proposed East-West security pact — and that resolving these issues could lead to "a balanced reduction of forces" by both sides.

But couldn't the Senator have learned all this without a two-week trip abroad? Surely the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been advised of the details of the Department of State's position in relation to the maintenance of American Forces stationed overseas in support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Before Senator Muskie went to Europe he was briefed by the Department of State. He had already completed plans for his visit to Moscow and other capitals, and he was given whatever information he sought concerning current conditions. It is customary for State Department officers to do this whenever American officials seek such data in connection with trips to other countries.

Mr. Muskie didn't ask permission from the State Department to talk with the Moscow government. But when he had arranged to do so, the department would have been establishing a precedent if it had in any way sought to prevent the Senator from carrying out the mission he had chosen to undertake.

The United States maintains in Moscow an ambassador and a staff which is in constant contact with the Soviet Foreign Office. It has an ambassador in Bonn, too, with a large number of aides. The information that comes in from foreign capitals is examined in detail at the Department of State and transmitted to the President. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee periodically gets a summary of the situation as seen by American diplomats, and it is free to question the Secretary of State in open or closed conferences.

Despite the fact, however, that the Department of State makes available a great deal of detail about international affairs to members of the Foreign Relations Committee and to individual senators who go to the department to learn more about what is happening abroad, political speeches are made which seem to be based upon a lack of knowledge of what is going on.

Thus, a "unilateral withdrawal" of U.S. troops from Europe has been discussed in the Senate without taking into account the apprehension among our allies in western Europe and the adverse effects a premature reduction of forces could have on efforts to solve world problems.

Senator Muskie found firsthand some of the reasons why the State Department pursues the policies it does and why the program advocated by the Mansfield Resolution would be impractical. This is an example of the damaging extent of the use of the word "credibility" in the political parlance of the day. The State Department cannot disclose all the details of foreign relations, but it gives the essentials to Congress. Certainly it should have been apparent for a long time that the United States could not desert its European allies and repudiate the North Atlantic Treaty.

Senator Muskie's discovery of the situation in Western Europe will help Democratic as well as Republican Senators to realize that the Department of State, in dealing with foreign affairs, is well aware that any breakdown in the peace of Europe by an attack on western countries would involve the United States, just as has happened before. So the best preventive of war, it now is felt, is to be found in the maintenance of sufficient military force in Western Europe to thwart any aggressive moves.

Cambodia Is Key to Drive On South Vietnam, Say Officials

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some officials here now believe that the North Vietnamese will not be content to launch fresh military adventures just in Cambodia this year but will try an attack in South Vietnam.

The argument is simple. Hanoi intends to exert its maximum possible influence on South Vietnam's elections this fall for congress and the presidency. Our military men are guessing that the enemy considers maintenance of its "fighting credibility" within South Vietnam to be an indispensable part of that undertaking.

U.S. judgments are, not surprisingly, that such an assault would come at the easiest point of entry, through the Ashau valley from the Ho Chi Minh trail, toward the northern salient stretching from Hue down to Da Nang and perhaps beyond.

There is high confidence in official circles that an attack there not only would be successfully repelled but that enemy forces would in the process be badly chewed up. The feeling is Hanoi may decide it must make the effort at any cost.

Appraisals of probable enemy intent sometimes shift rapidly in this capital. Only a short time ago, I reported on the basis of contact with high sources — our expectation that the North Vietnamese might soon start a major drive in Cambodia along a line running northwest-southeast above Phnom Penh. An anchor point in that line is Kompong Cham.

The view was that this endeavor would be made to clear the way for full-scale Red reoccupation of the old sanctuaries opposite Saigon and the populous South Vietnamese delta region. No sustained attack can be made on these crucial South Vietnamese zones except from big "springboard" bases across the Cambodian border nearby.

Different possibilities now are being held out. First, there is less conviction that major Red movement will come as early as the approaching Tet period. It would not surprise experts here if it came at any time in the present dry season extending to May, or even if some undertakings were begun in the wet period. It has happened before.

Moreover, the belief is no longer so strong that Hanoi will seek a direct frontal confrontation in Cambodia at all. With the advertised expectation that sizable South Vietnamese forces would go to the Cambodians' aid in defense of a line through Kompong Cham, the North Vietnamese could decide that the cost of the effort in men and materiel would be too great.

Military men in Washington put harder emphasis today on the prospect the enemy might choose what it sees as an easier alternative. That is the strangling of Phnom Penh's economic life to bring down the Lon Nol government.

The objective, it is suggested, would not be to engineer a complete take-over by Hanoi but to install a "neutral" government which would immobilize the improving Cambodian army and possibly open the way painlessly to Hanoi's reoccupation of the old, vital southern sanctuaries.

The present effort to reestablish Phnom Penh's Route 4 link to its oil refinery on the seacoast at Kompong Som (Sihanoukville) is the first serious move to forestall such a strategy. While the outcome remains in doubt at this writing, the pincer assault by South Vietnamese units on the small Red forces which broke the route at two mountain passes last November is a critical maneuver. Our supporting air bombardment consequently is not surprising.

But, of course, Hanoi's attempt to starve Phnom Penh for fuel and power is not the whole story. U.S. experts believe Red forces, some now in hill sanctuaries northwest of the city, have the capacity at any time to sever — for an enduring period — the important Route 5 link to Cambodia's great rice-producing areas in its northwesterly sector. So far, interdiction of this roadway has been only sporadic.

Hanoi's units cannot be as easily supplied in this area, but neither could assisting South Vietnamese units, unless we helped with an air ferry. The struggle for Route 5 could prove the most decisive in 1971.

Jack Anderson Says Sweeping Reorganization of Federal Government Proposed

WASHINGTON — The secret paperwork has been completed for a sweeping reorganization of the federal government. Only the State, Defense, Treasury and Justice Departments will remain unscathed.

The changes have been proposed in a series of exhaustive memos to President Nixon from a high-powered task force headed by Roy Ash, president of Litton Industries.

"We are well aware that sweeping organizational changes are difficult to accomplish and not to be undertaken lightly," reported the Ash Council in a 427-page memo to the President dated Nov. 19, 1970. "However, after a very careful examination, we have rejected more modest approaches for we believe that they will not solve the management problems that challenge the government today."

President Nixon still must approve some of the details. And Congress, of course, will have the final word on any major government surgery.

The federal bureaucracy's powers of self-preservation also shouldn't be underestimated. Such agencies as the Office of Economic Opportunity, marked for elimination by the Ash Council, are fighting for survival in the backrooms of Washington.

Under the Ash proposals, most domestic functions would be regrouped under four major government departments. They would be called the Department of Human Resources, Department of Natural Resources, Department of Community Development and Department of Economic Development.

Inside White House
Up until the middle of last month, the Transportation Department held out against reorganization. Then two White House aides sent out a stiff memo of opposition, dated December 14, to the President's major dome, John Ehrlichman.

Protested aides Bud Krogh and Andy Rouse. "It appears inappropriate," considering how far the Ash proposals go, to permit the Department of Transportation to remain the only means-oriented domestic agency in the executive branch — with its programs, interests and constituencies overlapping those of other agencies." Apparently, the department will now be partially dismembered.

Attorney General John Mitchell made a personal appeal to the President to prevent the break-up of his department. Mitchell argued that, in view of his strike forces' success in combatting organized crime in key cities, the Justice Department should be left alone.

He encountered little resistance from the Ash Council, which was concerned that a consolidation of law enforcement agencies would raise the spectre of a national police force. The Justice Department, therefore, is expected to be stripped only of the non-enforcement features of its drug-control program which will be transferred to Human Resources.

Nixon Frustrated
President Nixon has been fuming ever since he moved into the White House over his inability to bestir the vast federal bureaucracy. Poor Richard has issued directives, delivered pronouncements and dictated memos to little avail.

They disappear into the cumbersome federal machine that we sometimes call the Fuddle Factory. There follows a great grinding of gears and spinning of bureaucratic wheels. But for all the wondrous activity, little forward momentum results.

In the privacy of his oval office, the President fuses over the negative attitudes of most bureaucrats, fumes at their can't-be-done responses to his ideas and chafes over the bureaucratic inertia. He has complained that government officials "spent one half of their time writing papers to each other."

He has tried to make the bureaucracy more responsive to his will by requiring political clearance for all appointees down to the grade 13 level. More often than not, however, this has resulted in the appointment of political hacks who are less efficient than the career workers they replaced.

Almost in desperation, the President commissioned a task force to revamp the federal government. The Ash Council, after months of intensive research, confirmed Nixon's own conviction that "existing departments and agencies are not sufficiently responsive to presidential policy direction."

The council contended in the November 19 memo to the President that the present federal structure "has failed to keep pace with changing (conditions)..." Among the consequences are jurisdictional competition, overlapping of effort, inability to evaluate program performance and an inability to establish accountability....

"The present departmental design, bolstered by private constituencies, congressional ties and professional loyalties, has encouraged piecemeal legislation, uncoordinated planning, resistance to policy changes."

This duplication and fragmentation of the government's effort, according to the confidential memo, "has tended not to solve, but rather contributes to, the problems of interdepartmental rivalry, parochialism and public confusion."

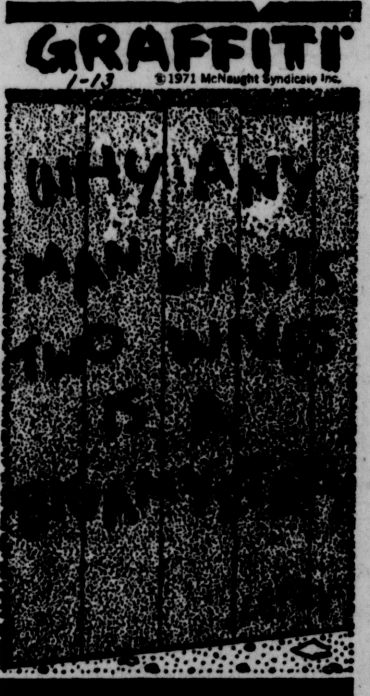

Fish Contamination

In the wake of the discovery of hazardous levels of mercury in canned tuna, the National Marine Fisheries Service has quietly begun testing about a dozen other species of fish to determine whether they, too, may contain unsafe levels of mercury, lead, cadmium or arsenic.

Results of the new studies are expected to be turned over to the Food and Drug Administration in late February, though preliminary results haven't uncovered any other potentially hazardous heavy metal concentrations. Other studies, however, have found high mercury levels in swordfish.

Scientists investigation the pollution of tuna have suggested that larger tuna appear to contain higher concentrations of mercury.

Japanese fishermen reportedly have developed techniques for selectively snagging the fish of medium to small size, a development which might give them a very useful edge if the larger fish become off limits because of mercury content.

Henry J. Taylor Says Tax Returns Up for Grabs

Behind the scenes, a U.S. Senate subcommittee finds that 23 Federal agencies now have direct access to our citizen's income tax returns for an official total of 109 reasons. This is not only outrageous but totally dangerous. How come, Big Brother?

The potential bus is self-evident. Your income tax declaration and all that can be construed from it — probably the most private, intimately revealing thing demanded of citizens — started out to be inviolate. Most of the 72 million filers think it is. But, dig out the truth, and what's happening is as bad as if a zoo's walls were crumbling and every animal from wart hogs to grizzly bears were galloping loose.

The harassed Internal Revenue Service is not responsible for this. The outside agencies contrived their own intrusions to the IRS' utter dismay. But what an outrageous opening for scattered bureaucratic insiders, and for crooks, pressure boys, spite artists, political opponents, business rivals and others who can quietly get your declaration by cozy relationships, bribery and other means.

Did you know your tax return is merely up for grabs once you deliver it to Big Brother?

Some of the motives behind the 109 so-called reasons for this permitted intrusion by the 23 agencies are obscure, and certainly the result contains long-range potentials involving the threat of repression. Like Topsy, the number of intruding agencies and the 109 so-called reasons "just grew and grew."

Government abuses can acquire their own momentum and grow to have a life of their own, like a spreading cancer.

A roar of national protest should put a stop — and once — to this and the government's other undercover, unrevealed expansions. Each is one of the hidden activities that is putting an increasing strain on the democratic traditions of American life. How long can these hidden prostitutions of our intended government continue without wrecking every democratic concept in our democratic system?

When a news writer revealed that army intelligence agents admittedly spied on senatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson III and other Illinois campaigners, New York students, etc., the bureaucratic alibis and buck-passing began. But these secret intruders had invaded the privacy of Americans everywhere like termites covering a log. The official who gave them the opportunity (still unexposed) should have been fired out of hand. Can anything stop abuses like this except the outraged fear of public opinion?

The hodgepodge of Washington bureaus is installing data processing computers at the astounding rate of about 500 a year, with an emphasis on piling up information about citizens everywhere. This shocker goes beyond the installation and paper-work costs, although these alone are enormous as they are incalculable.

By not using their restraint systems, women are setting a bad example for their children, and they are actually being terribly unfair to their families.

For example, the Civil Service Commission, on inquiry, replies that, yes, it now does compile "lead information relating to possible questions" that might come up about countless people. The Justice Department lists 13,200 names of persons known to have urged violence. The Secret Service has developed a gargantuan file of "persons of interest," including those whose only bid for Secret Service attention is their criticism of government policies. And so it goes. Are we to be curled into a ball of fear?

In the right of privacy or any other right it is a common habit of citizens to cherish it more because they have lost it. But then it is too late. The losses usually come gradually. "It couldn't happen here" is a suicidal philosophy.

Big Brother's intrusion into our American life is not new, nor is its expansion schemed and planned in the sense of a sinister design, of course. Actually, it's a drift. But the drift is on for sure and, for one thing, electronic technological advances are speeding the drift frighteningly.

Today's data processing advances allow Big Brother to acquire, store and use the tremendous files of information Big Brother collects on each of us with a correlation and speed which completely changes the potential for the invasion of privacy.

Even the vastly expanded questions in the 1970 census contribute their heavy share. This is not a count of our population as the Constitution demands. It is, instead, a systematic penetration of our privacy, undoubtedly useful but expanded nevertheless in accord with the sprawling cancer.

The Romans asked: "Who is watching the watchman?" Well, let us ask that question now — and how!

Timely Quote

Managing Editor's Notebook

Freeman sports editor Charlie Tiano to whose opinions we generally bow (mostly in the field of sports) had an interesting column recently devoted to the widespread practice of recruitment of athletes on the community college level.

Charlie's point intriguingly presented with reference to Dr. Naismith and the rudimentary beginning of the present colossus of basketball, leaves the impression that all those who are agin' high-powered recruitment either belong in the Dark Ages or are just generally against all intercollegiate competition.

Well maybe it just ain't so.

Being a loyal Ulster Countyite, a neighbor of the community college in Stone Ridge and a taxpayer (that's for sure) the success of any athletic team at UCCC would be a pleasure. After all, who would want to hear that our area youths are a bunch of patsies. But, is an organized recruitment practice that snacks of the powerhouses of Ohio State, Oklahoma or Stanford exactly what the taxpayers have in mind in their concept of what a community college should be.

Wasn't a school such as this initially conceived for the benefit of the young of the area who were unprepared either academically or emotionally to enter high pressure four year institutions? Is not a community college a further extension of a high school education in preparation for higher academic levels or at least a place where "I can find myself" as the kids phrase it?

And wasn't it brought into being primarily for the benefit of the young in the area?

So where does recruitment leave us if not to usurp places on the basketball team or wrestling team or other squads with outsiders, notwithstanding their athletic qualifications.

It won't wash to claim that the whole Mid-Hudson Conference follows the same practice and that if Ulster County did not do so we would place last in practically all the various sports standings.

Leo Durocher coined the phrase that nice guys finish last. However, in the case of community college athletics, we'd have to go along with Grantland Rice's "it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game."

Call it naive but we think that area kids should be filling those desks at Stone Ridge, and manning the spots on the athletic squads regardless of how good or bad it makes various coaches look.

Tentative Approval For Ulster Housing

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

TOWN OF ULSTER

A $5 million proposed senior citizens apartment complex with 200 units now in the preliminary planning stages received tentative approval by the Federal Housing Authority, New York City.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino, who has been advised of the plans, said the FHA has given tentative approval to the project and the sponsors, the Town of Ulster Senior Citizens Inc., will be ready to hire an architect within the month.

The federally-funded project will be a two-story brick veneer structure proposed for a 10-acre site on Neighborhood Road, Lake Katrine. The project will include 200 units of efficiency apartments, one room and two rooms with kitchen and combination living room and bedroom and bath.

Rents based on the income of the tenants will range from $55 per month and up. Senior citizens at least 62 years old and over will be eligible.

The Senior Citizens organization is currently making a survey to determine how many seniors are interested. Application forms are now available at the town clerk's or supervisor's office at Lake Katrine Grange Hall. Also applications are available by contacting Russell Brott, adviser to the Senior Citizens, RD 6, Box 393, Kingston, 12401.

Supervisor Sabino said no drawings of the layout are currently available, but in preliminary discussions it was agreed that the complex would include a community room for meetings, recreation, and a library. Sabino was optimistic about the project and said if negotiations with the FHA progress favorably, there is no reason why the site work cannot start when the frost is out of the ground this spring.

When the apartments are open and occupied, the rent receipts will be used for operational and maintenance of the facility.

He said he was checking on the possibility of a rent subsidy to make up the amount of rent above that which a senior citizen normally is able to pay. He noted that he has been in touch with 28th District Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., on various phases of the project.

The rent subsidy works this

Counseling House Is Topic at YWCA

KINGSTON

Jay Wenk, who founded and organized a community mental health center in Woodstock less than two months ago, was the featured speaker at a meeting of the YWCA Wednesday night.

An outspoken critic of counseling and rehabilitation centers and programs operated by the state and federal governments, Wenk recently opened The Place as an "on the street" community oriented counseling house that emphasizes the causes of various sociological and psychological problems as well as their treatment.

Although The Place has experienced numerous problems during its first weeks of existence, Wenk envisions the eventual development of a "wide ranging, multi-faceted program using many disciplines," including "psychology, psychiatry and medicine."

The program will never reach its full potential, claims Wenk, unless it receives substantial funding from either the government or community, and it is to this end that he spoke.

Wenk claims that most state and federal programs, specifically those conceived and run by the state Narcotics Addiction Control Commission, have been disastrous failures. "Segregated, compulsory treatment (of narcotics addiction and mental health disorders, for instance) have been astoundingly inefficient," claims Wenk.

"The NACC," he noted, "is spending hundreds of millions of dollars in a cruel hoax on both the public and the addicts." He charges that roughly 99 percent of all addicts who participate in the state-run program are back on the streets within three months "shooting up" hard drugs.

Wenk attributes the failures of state-operated programs to the fact that "they are dealing with the problems of the individual, but they are not trying to correct the larger problems of society as a whole."

"They must be personally and vitally associated with current problems," claims Wenk. "We will not be able to provide meaningful rehabilitation unless we rehabilitate society."

A five-year resident of Woodstock, Wenk helped organize both Exodus House and Reality House in the Harlem section of Manhattan. He has worked as a staff counselor for the NACC and as a group counselor for the New York State Department of Corrections at Greenhaven Prison. It was his experience at these facilities, he told The Freeman, that convinced him to organize a more feasible and workable program.

The success of Wenk's "alternative" rests, in large part, on the response his ideas receive from state officials and community members. He stated that he will continue to press for wide-ranging reforms in the field of treatment for the mentally and physically ill.

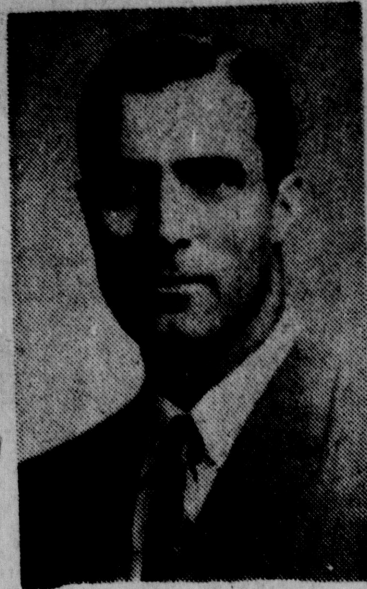

Court Terms Set Feb. 1

Search for Missing Boy Proves 'Drain' on Parents

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (UPI)—James Delgado, 27, and his wife Geraldine, 24, left their car on the Long Beach Freeway with a flat tire.

When they returned after telephoning for help early Wednesday their son, Anthony, 2, whom they had left asleep in the back seat, was missing.

The couple saw a large storm drain nearby and became alarmed, believing the boy had strayed into the opening.

The Delgados went into the drain searching for the boy. Twelve hours later, after residents heard someone underneath a street near a drain crying for help, the Delgados were rescued by firemen.

Authorities said they became lost in the labyrinth of the drains, which were only four feet in diameter.

Police said that after the couple went in the drain, Anthony, who had wandered momentarily from the car, returned to the vehicle and went back to sleep. The boy was later found safe in the car by relatives.

Black History Film Slated In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK

Mrs. Rose Downie, Woodstock Democratic Club president has extended an invitation to the public to a showing of the film "Black History—Lost, Strayed or Stolen" at 8 p.m., Friday Jan. 22 at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church on Route 212 in Woodstock.

Mrs. Downie and John Bonilla, Democratic Town Chairman, said that the film, sponsored jointly by the Democratic Club and Town Committee, is being shown as a service to the community.

The hour long presentation, narrated by well-known personality Bill Cosby, deals with the historic role of black Americans in our society and the systematic exclusion of their contribution from our history books. Everette Hodge, leader of the Kingston Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will be a member of an informal panel that will lead a discussion of the film and its relevance to today's society. Comments and questions will be invited from the audience.

The showing of this film by the Woodstock Democrats is the first of a series of events that will occur in the Kingston area leading to the celebration of National Black History Week starting Feb. 6 and ending on Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday. Mrs. Downie said that this would be the first Democratic Club function of the current year.

Kingston Jaycees Preparing for 20th

The Kingston Jaycees, currently listing 49 working members, will celebrate their 20th birthday in April, according to Joseph Vartanessian Jr., president.

Members of the local Jaycees are part of District 2, Division 2, comprising other Jaycee units in Greene County, Hudson, Woodstock, Saugerties, New Paltz, Rondout Valley and Highland.

The Mid-Hudson Valley basic outlines the shape of District 2, Division 2, which has been regarded as the most outstanding division of the 10 in New York State for the past three years.

Membership in the Jaycees is open to interested young men in the 21-35 age bracket.

Water Fight at Nightclub, Laugh-In's Judy Hits Back

NEW YORK (UPI)—An impromptu water-tossing incident between actress Judy Carne and a spectator at her show at the Plaza Hotel's Persian Room Wednesday night touched off a "free-for-all," police said.

Miss Carne, the former "sock-it-to-me" girl who got doused with water regularly on television's "Laugh-In," told UPI three men at her first show "started to hangle me a bit and made remarks."

She said she became angry and "pointed out that their remarks were really uncool. Suddenly one of the three stood up and threw a glass of water at me."

"I threw it back," she said.

Her conductor, Randy Edelman, came to her defense and more water was sloshed.

"Everybody was very wet," Miss Carne said.

Police said a "free-for-all involving seven or eight people" erupted after Miss Carne had finished her act and left the

Same Thief

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — When a robber pointed his pistol at grocery clerk Mrs. Berle Brenner, she said, "Oh, no, not again!" "That's right, baby," the robber replied.

Financial Secretary Albert J. Cawein of Blue Mountain presented the financial status of the church and outlined a program of improvement. The 1971 budget was explained by Burhans and subsequently adopted. The treasurer's report was given by Stewart, church treasurer.

The Rev. Richard E. Shemen-ske, pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church, serving as vice pastor in the interim of pulpit vacancy spoke briefly to the congregation. Mrs. Eleanor DeForest served as secretary pro-tem.

ACCEPT PLAQUE — John Lawrence, center, Saugerties Jaycee president, is shown accepting a plaque in behalf of local organizations celebrating the completion of the pavilion at Jaycee Memorial Field. Left is Bernard Rinaldi, town councilman and George Leombruno, chairman of the Saugerties Recreation Commission. The Jaycees will also build a new pavilion this year at Veteran's Memorial Field. The Town Board will provide the funds.

Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce Looking Into the Shopping Habits

RHINEBECK An effort to assess, and perhaps change, the shopping habits of Northern Dutchess County shoppers is being undertaken by the Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce, and will be the subject of its Feb. 1 dinner meeting.

The meeting will be held at the Beekman Arms, with dinner beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Professor George Freedman, chairman of Retail Business Management at Dutchess Community College, four of his students and Henry Heissen, buttel, Commissioner of County Planning, will be the guests. Professor Freedman and his students are preparing to conduct a shopping survey of the area, at the request of the Rhinebeck Chamber.

The goal of this survey is to determine "how many people to our merchants, members of the Board of Directors have met spend their money, why, and what we, as citizens and merchants of this area, can do to rectify this situation," according to a Chamber release.

"In an effort to make the survey meaningful and useful to our merchants, members of the Board of Directors have met several times with qualified experts in the field of business management," it relates.

And it warns that "apathy now may mean a continued recession in your business, in your home, and in our community."

Other officers elected were: Lee Johnson's discussion Feb. 1 at the home of James Linda Masterson, vice president; Beverly Van Voorhis, secretary; and Barbara Boardman, treasurer. The Millbrook meeting was scheduled for May contact Van Voorhis.

Bus Scheduled Next Wednesday For Middletown

KINGSTON

For the convenience of persons wishing to visit a patient at Middletown State Hospital, a special bus runs once a month from Ulster County to the hospital, sponsored by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health.

This month, the bus will run on Wednesday, Jan. 27. Departure times are: Kingston, Park Diner, 11:45 a.m.; Rosendale, The Elms, 12 noon; New Paltz, Grand Union, North Chestnut Street, 12:10 p.m. The bus leaves the hospital for the return journey at 4 p.m., thus allowing nearly two hours for visiting.

A nominal charge is made for the service. Anyone having difficulty in meeting the price may call the office of the Association, open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 27 East O'Reilly Street, Kingston.

Meanwhile, it was announced today that the eighth annual legislative assembly of the New York State Association for Mental Health will be held Jan. 26 at the Sheraton Towne Motor Inn, Albany.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is expected to address the delegates and will be introduced by Mrs. Harriet Allen Kerr of New Paltz, member of the board of directors of the county AMH and who also is president of the state association.

Various workshops will be held throughout the day starting at 9:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Peter G. Young of Albany, the association's legislative chairman, will present the legislative position of the association for 1971 during the luncheon meeting.

CSEA Beaten In Red Hook

RED HOOK

The non-faculty employees of the Red Hook Central School District defeated by a 3-1 margin Tuesday a proposition that they be represented by the Civil Service Employees Association.

Of the 97 eligible to vote, 92 cast their paper ballots. And 69 voted against the proposition, while 23 voted in favor.

The voting was supervised by two Public Employment Relations Board field workers, who will notify their superiors in Albany.

District Principal Russell Keefe and Board of Education Vice President Robert Bowman agreed that this vote was an indication of "good faith" on the part of the employees.

The CSEA had asked that PERB hold the referendum, having evidently determined that there was some interest on the part of the workers.

Those included in the vote are buildings and grounds, bus drivers, custodial staff, kitchen workers, and office workers.

Keefe noted at a recent Board of Education meeting that some of the employees had been asked to pay dues to the CSEA, and the vote for all or none of the employees seemed the sensible approach.

He said Tuesday that he didn't think a similar vote could be held again for at least a year, and the indications were that there would not be much point in any kind of re-vote.

Rolison Named To Key Posts

ALBANY

Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. (R., Dutchess-Ulster), in addition to being chairman of the Senate Authorities Committee, has also been appointed to the very important and prestigious Judiciary Committee and re-appointed to the important Codes Committee of the Senate.

In addition, the Senator will serve on the following Senate Committees: Banks, Agriculture and Markets, Crimes and Correction, Motor Vehicles and Transportation, Social Services, Public Utilities, and Towns and Counties.

Senator Rolison will thus be serving on just about one-third of all the Senate Standing Committees, including two of the top four in importance.

The Judiciary Committee has among its functions the review and approval of appointments of judges and justices as well as other proposed appointments to various state offices, agencies and commissions by the Governor.

$18,000 Paid by Millionaire To Charter Plane From Paris

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — It cost millionaire Charles A. Munn $18,000 to fly directly from Paris to West Palm Beach, but he figures a chartered jetliner with five passengers is "the only way to travel" across the ocean.

Besides, you avoid the nuisance of changing planes in New York.

Munn, 85, chartered a Boeing 707 jet from Pan American for the nonstop flight from Paris to his winter home here Wednesday. There are no direct commercial flights.

"Of course, this isn't the first plane I've ever chartered, but it's the biggest one," he said. Munn chartered the plane because he didn't want to have to change planes in New York.

Four stewardesses were on hand to serve Munn a beef fillet dinner while his wife enjoyed her favorite meal — hot dogs with French mustard, washed down with martinis. A purser, flight engineer and three pilots filled out a crew that outnumbered the passengers.

"I have been ill, so I wanted to get here quickly," Munn said. He had two double beds put aboard for the 10-hour flight, but nurse Barbara Wira, 24, of Edison, N. J., said he rested only part of the time during the crossing. Miss Wira's mother, Mrs. Charles Wira, and Munn's friend Jack Gage of San Francisco were the other passengers aboard.

The in-flight movie was "Misunderstood," a British film.

Munn, who has maintained a winter residence in Palm Beach for the last 50 years, looked anything but ill when he got off the plane. Tall and thin, with an elegant white moustache, he strode through the immigration and customs formalities at the small airport and met an onslaught of local reporters with a patient smile.

After him came Mrs. Munn, the former Dorothy Spreckels, a tall fiftyish blonde in black slacks and black fur coat.

The only jarring note was the Florida weather. An icy blast greeted the Munn's, who found themselves in the midst of a cold spell that dropped temperatures into the thirties — considerably cooler than the weather they left in Paris.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened mixed on moderate turnover today.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.14 at 849.81.

But of the 333 issues crossing the tape, advances were leading declines, 131 to 104.

In the steel group, U.S. Steel dipped ¼ to 33½, but Bethlehem edged up ¼ to 23½. Republic ½ to 31¼. Armco held unchanged at 23.

General Motors picked up ¼ to 78½ in its group. Chrysler was steady at 25½.

In the chemicals, Du Pont gained ¼ to 132½. Monsanto ¼ to 35½.

Penn. Central was unchanged at 6 in the rails. So was Southern Pacific at 37½. UAL Inc. dipped ¼ to 28 among the airlines. American was unchanged at 27½, as was Eastern at 16½. TWA dipped ¼ to 15½. TWA reported a loss for 1970.

General Dynamics was unchanged at 25½ in the aircrafts. United Aircraft eased ¼ to 37½.

In the electronics, Westinghouse climbed ¼ to 70½. Sperry Rand was ¼ higher at 25½, but IBM dipped ¼ to 31¼. Texas Instruments picked up ¼ to 82½.

Senate Leader Still Critical At Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., remained in critical condition today from a respiratory infection.

Russell, 73, president pro tem of the Senate and chairman of its appropriations committee, entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center Dec. 8 for treatment of the illness and took a turn for the worse this week.

The senator's press secretary, Powell Moore, said Russell remained in "very critical condition."

"If anything, he is weaker," Moore said.

Justice Douglas Impeachment Crys Renewed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The effort to impeach Justice William O. Douglas has been resurrected by Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., who has proposed an investigating committee with instructions to wield tougher powers than the House subcommittee that cleared Douglas last month.

Wyman said he would introduce a resolution designed to set up a six-panel that would be told to subpoena witnesses and take testimony under oath — powers not used by the House Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y.

Wyman said the greatest single reason for a new investigation is the report of the Celler subcommittee.

"The report shows that he (Douglas) made more money on the side in the '60s than he drew in salary as a judge," he said.

About 110 congressmen of both parties pushed a drive against the 72-year-old justice last year, charging he associated with gamblers, practiced law while on the bench, advocated violence and that excerpts from one of his books appeared in a magazine they described as pornographic.

Two Are Cited After Mishap

KINGSTON
Two motorists were cited by police Wednesday after their cars were involved in a collision on Hasbrouck Avenue near East Chester Street.

Maureen T. Killian, 18, of Tucson, Arizona, was summoned to appear in City Court to face a charge of operating a motor vehicle with no inspection sticker. The other driver, Vincent J. Lawrence of 45 Ponckhockie Street, was charged with failing to exhibit a license.

Police reports noted that the woman was backing her car out of a driveway when the vehicles collided.

Traffic summonses were issued by police yesterday to Stanley J. Neal, 24, of Rondout Gardens. He was cited for having no inspection sticker, improper plates and operating a car without insurance.

Fire Scare In City Church

KINGSTON
City firefighting apparatus responded to a 10:30 a.m. alarm today at the First Baptist Church on the corner of Broadway and Albany Avenue after a glass door in a boiler in the basement of the church broke causing the release of steam.

No fire, however, was discovered and damage as a result of escaping steam was minimal, according to fire officials.

C-H Income

Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation reported that net income for 1970 was $6,647,568, subject to audit, and earnings per share were $1.66, compared with $8,781,185, and $2.28 a share, in 1969.

Milady and Cigarettes—More Younger Women Kicking the Habit

KINGSTON
There's a package of cigarettes in one out of every three women's handbags in this country. Mrs. Helen Delaney, Program Committee Member of the Ulster County Interagency Council on the Hazards of Smoking, said today.

"Among women aged 25 to 55 years, the percentage of smokers is a little higher," Mrs. Delaney said, citing recent statistics released by the National Center for Health Statistics of the U.S. Public Health Service. The survey reveals that 40.2 per cent of women aged 25 to 44 smoke, while only 29.4 per cent of those aged 17 to 24 and 30.5 per cent of those aged 45 to 64 do.

This represents an actual decrease in the proportion of U.S. women who smoke for the two-year period June 1968 to August 1968, the first such decrease since national statistics on smoking have been compiled. During the same period, she said, the proportion of men who smoked dropped from 48.6 to 45.9 per cent.

Mrs. Delaney said the data also indicates that more women were quitting than were joining the ranks of smokers during that two-year period and that the decrease in the proportion of present smokers was greater among the younger women. "Other studies show that men and women who quit smoking do so for different reasons,"

Mrs. Delaney said. "Our local Ulster County interagency council is studying these results in hopes of finding effective methods for helping both men and women to give up cigarettes." Mrs. Delaney pointed out that the Council is sponsored by American Cancer Society, Ulster County Unit; Catskill Region TB and RD Association; and Mid-Hudson Heart Association and is composed of representatives from official and voluntary health agencies, schools, organizations and industry. "Our Interagency Council hopes that increased knowledge of the health effects of smoking will help both sexes make the decision to quit."

To help spread the word, the council participated in National Education Week on Smoking Jan. 11-16, and still offers a variety of free literature on smoking and tips on quitting. Mrs. Delaney urged all interested people to contact the Cancer, Heart and TB-RD groups for literature and further information.

County Villages Getting Ready for March 16 Elections

BY ALBERT J. CAWEIN.

NEW PALTZ

Preliminary arrangements are being made in New Paltz, Ellenville and Rosendale for Tuesday, March 16 in which each will be electing a mayor, and Rosendale will also have a referendum on whether or not to dissolve that municipality.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions is Tuesday, Feb. 23. In New Paltz and Ellenville at least 75 signers must be on the petitions. The requirements for Rosendale has not been determined at this time.

In New Paltz, the term of long-time mayor, Henry DuBois expires this year and the positions of two village trustees will also be on the ballot. These include O. Lincoln Igou, who was recently appointed to fill the term of Charles Wooster, who died early in December and John Sherwig, who was named late last year to fill the resignation of Leland Heinze.

If Igou and Sherwig declare themselves in the race, they could run for either the two-year or four-year term. Heinze's term would have expired Dec. 31 last year and Wooster had two more years to serve. The other trustees, whose terms do not expire this year, are John Logan and George Ackert. The party lines have not been drawn as yet and it is not known whether the candidates will be Democrats or Independents or Peoples Party.

In Ellenville, the term of Robert J. Dowling-R. expires and also the two-year terms of Edwin E. Hoar-R and Walter V. Grey-D.

As the deadline for filing nominating petitions is some weeks off, declarations as to whether the incumbents will run for reelection have not been announced.

Registration dates for the March election will be announced by Village Manager Lawrence Eyres. Balloting will be from 12 noon to 9 p.m., it was announced at a recent Village Board meeting.

In Rosendale, in addition to electing a mayor and one trustee, both for two years, the electorate will ballot on a referendum on the dissolution of the village.

Incumbent GOP Mayor Carl Grassi is expected to run for reelection, but has not as yet made it official. However, Trustee Kenneth Smith, who won on the Independent and GOP lines, has told friends and associates that he will not seek another term.

Former Democratic Mayor Joseph Reid, defeated two years ago by Attorney William P.

Curran, who later resigned, said the Democrats will definitely have a candidate for the trustee post. However, he did not say whether or not he or someone else would run against Grassi. He is planning to go on vacation soon and may make an announcement when he gets back, the former mayor indicated.

Reid, however, did have something to say about dissolution of the village. He indicated there are many facets that require thorough study. He said one of the major problems will be what to do about the village indebtedness. Under dissolution, he said the village must retain its indebtedness and village taxpayers must pay. The assets are turned over to the town which will operate both the town and village as one entity.

Upon questioning, he said the village had some properties they could sell to pay off the debts and the resulting transactions would leave a healthy balance. However, Reid said the sale of village properties must be accomplished before the dissolution. There are many legalities to investigate before such a method could be employed, he said.

The Village Board last week voted to place the referendum on the March 16 ballot. Dissolution of the village has been a matter of study for some years. Reid said that when he was in office, his administration made a study of the proposal and could not find all the answers.

Former Mayor Curran, when he resigned recommended that the village dissolve to solve its financial problems.

Dissolution would eliminate the Village Board and the mayor's office as well as other village jobs.

Mayor Grassi said last week that the board conferred with the State Council of Mayors and they reported that the taxpayers could save about $16,000 in administrative costs.

TAKE OFFICE — Some of the nine county officers and 33 County Legislators who will assume the responsibilities of Ulster's elected officials during Youth-In-Government Day are pictured above, top, Left, Linda Johnson of Kingston High School whom students elected Family Court Judge; Kevin Boyd of J. Watson Bailey School who will assume the role of county clerk; Richard Kamen, Kingston High School, district attorney; Mary Smith, Rondout High School, county treasurer and Dwayne White, Saugerties, Ulster County Sheriff. In the picture at the bottom are students elected as county legislators who will sit in with the members of the County Board at the Feb. 11 Legislature meeting. Left Cynthia A. Debrosky, Rondout School; Lorna Stevens, Saugerties; David Levine, seated; Keith Swan, Kingston; and Lisa Pollack, J. Watson Bailey School. Three parties submitted candidates for elections which were held last December in the various schools of the county.

Youth-In-Government Day: Winning Candidates Listed

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Kathleen Locke, Kingston High School junior was elected chairman of the Ulster County Legislature Wednesday night in a simulated election in preparation for Youth-In-Government Day, sponsored by the Legislature's Youth and Recreation Committee.

The petite blonde, who won over her opponent David Levine of Ontario Central School, will take over the chair held by County Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) when the real and the mock legislature meets jointly Feb. 11 in the County Office Building.

Observing Miss Locke's election and addressing all the winning candidates for all county officers were Mayor Francis R. Koenig who said he plans a similar Youth-In-Government project for the city; Majority Leader Douglas V. Dye (R-Dist. 2) who asked the students to develop their beliefs and "stay interested" and Minority Leader Roger Mabie (D-Dist. 7) who called the project one of "the finest undertakings" of a committee of the Legislature.

Also elected as majority leader was Nancy Sherman of Rondout Valley School; and two minority leaders, Lorna Stevens of Saugerties Central School and Robert Stevens of Kingston High School. They will meet, with Miss Locke and County Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2) chairman of the project before the next meeting of the Legislature in order to outline the work they will undertake when they assume the reins of government for a day.

Observing the proceedings Wednesday night in the Legislative Chamber of the County Office Building were members of the Youth and Recreation Committee who fielded questions from the students on a range of subjects including sales tax, flouridation and narcotics.

They were Clifford Snyder (R-Dist. 1), Melvin Mones (R-City), Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 7), Brian White (R-Dist. 9), William Davis (D-City), Paul Brazier (D-Dist. 1) and Lewis Kirschner (D-Dist. 7).

Also present was County Legislator Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 2).

Dye, speaking in behalf of Savago, who was unable to attend due to a conflict in his work schedule, called the project a "heart-warming" program which he felt might aid in attempting to close the generation gap. He described his generation as having found self discipline easy. "Your generation is one of change," he told them. "Social injustices are very clear to you. They are not thia Morse, Rondout School; James Corrigan, Kingston, and Victoria Rockson, Myron J. Michael School. Also, County Treasurer, Mary Smith, Rondout; Sheriff, Dwayne White, Saugerties, and Surrogate Judge, Walter Wagner.

Provide $50 for your future, and preserve the past for just $2.50 more.

Now, you can own the Kingston Savings Bank Historical Collection of four John Pike watercolors for just $2.50, when you add $50 to your present KSB account, or open an account with $50 or more.

These four scenes of our area — The Senate House, Rondout Creek, Overlook Mountain, and Perrines Bridge — are beautifully reproduced in full color, and preserved in plastic, so you can use them as placemats, or frame them.

Mr. Pike, world-renowned Woodstock artist, created these watercolors exclusively for Kingston Savings Bank. You can't buy them anywhere else. But if you could, you'd probably pay more than $2.50 for any one of them.

This is your opportunity to get all four, for less than 63¢ each. The offer probably won't be repeated, and ends when the supply is gone. So come to either office of Kingston Savings Bank with $52.50. You'll earn interest on $50, and get quite a bargain for the remaining $2.50.

'Won't Stand in Way if He Runs,' Reveals Mrs. Agnew

NEW YORK, January 21—Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew says she won't stand in her husband's way if he decides to run for President.

"That's something he's got to make up his mind about," Mrs. Elinor "Judy" Agnew stated in an article in the current (February) issue of McCall's magazine, published today.

"He's got to be happy in what he's doing, and if he's happy, then the family is happy," said the 49-year-old mother of four.

Asserting that she has taught herself to ignore the barbs directed her husband's way by rival politicians and others, Mrs. Agnew declared: "I've made myself not get upset when people criticize Spiro. I'd be upset every day of the week otherwise."

Nor does it bother her at all, she said, that the one letter she has received that attacked her personally came from a disgruntled woman who wrote: "You've set Women's Lib back a hundred years!"

Mrs. Agnew described the Vice President as "a very even-tempered person. He doesn't get excited. If we have a disagreement, we can talk about it and iron it out—after I get over my quiet spell. When I'm upset, which I'm not very often, my husband says I clam up. He gets the message and keeps quiet too. But it only lasts for a few minutes."

In Mrs. Agnew's eyes, the job of the Vice President's wife is not very different from that of any other wife. "It's being there when her husband needs her. Of course, I try to fill the official role the best I can, too."

Mrs. Agnew reveals that she is largely a wife and mother unchanged by her husband's rapid political rise. She still gets up at seven in the morning to get her youngest child—15-year-old Kim—off to school, cooks for the family on weekends, packs for the Vice President when he travels, and accompanies him around the world—without a hairdresser or maid in her entourage. She adds that she never forgets to pack the Vice President's Water Pic and exercise wheel when he goes on a trip.

As to fashion, Mrs. Agnew says: "I don't pay attention to who makes what, as long as I like it and it's in my price range."

"My biggest step," Mrs. Agnew states in McCall's, "was when my husband became Governor of Maryland, not Vice President of the United States."

Antique Show This Weekend

Forty-three dealers from the eastern seaboard will exhibit and sell unusual treasures at the North Colonie Women's Republic Club Antique Show and Sale to be held this Saturday and Sunday at Sienna College, Loudonville. The hours are from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, and 12 noon to 7 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets may be secured at the door of the Gymnasium where the Show will be held.

Driver-Education For Teens Makes Family Feel Secure

By VIVIAN BROWN

It pays to keep up school grades if one wants to get a driver's license.

For many girls, a driver's license has replaced the first girdle, lipstick, high heels and bra as the passport to womanhood.

But how a girl might fight her parents on the question of driver education. Tooth and nail, that is—a real tug of war—because "any moron can drive a car," she may say.

Why driver education?

One: The family feels more secure if daughter has taken some lessons, and they may lend her the car whenever she wants it. This should make it worth while.

Two: There are economy reasons. If there is a driver's license, insurance companies give as much as 15 per cent discount on the family insurance premium that escalates when teenagers drive a car.

Insurance premiums that include teen-agers are high because of the high accident rate in that group. But insurance companies do not want to penalize all young people because some disregard rules, regulations and the laws of driving. Their statistics show that good students and driver-ed grads are better drivers.

One almost-16 year old held out on driver-ed as long as she could. But it was that or never drive the family car, so she gave in.

Her father is proud to say that she is the best driver in the family. She cautions everyone to wear seat belts, quotes statistics on accidents and is hyper-critical of the driving standards of some of her peers.

But she has a word of advice to eager-beavers who want a car license: Ask the license bureau when you will be eligible for a license.

In her own state the license manual stated plainly, "an applicant must be at least 16 years of age. . . . It failed to state that one must be one month plus 16 years of age."

After taking the required 30 hours of classroom study and six hours behind the wheel, she scheduled her test, submitted the required driver-ed certificate, filled out all the necessary forms and was about to drive off with the examiner, when he discovered that she lacked one day of being one month past her sixteenth birthday. He brusquely told her to seek another appointment, which meant getting on the list again for several weeks.

MR. AND MRS. EMILE C. PRUNIER of Boice's Trailer Park, Sawkill Road, Kingston, celebrated their silver anniversary January 5. Married at White Plains, Mrs. Prunier is the daughter of the late Lester and Bessie Smith of Armonk. Her husband served three and one-half years in the U. S. Army stationed in the Pacific where he held the rank of sergeant in the Engineer Corps. He was born in Montreal, Canada, and lived for awhile in Vermont. He is employed as an automobile mechanic at Caldor's in Kingston. Many congratulatory messages from relatives and friends were received by the couple at their new mobile home.

Benefits Rummage Sale Scheduled

Articles being solicited by the Public Health Committee for its annual rummage sale, March 4 and 5 to benefit the Loan Closet, Nursing Scholarship Fund and other community projects. The Loan Closet provides wheel chairs, crutches, walkers, free of charge to the community. Last year two Nursing Scholarship awards of $100 each were presented to two Saugerties High School graduates planning a nursing career.

Now is the chance for friends of the Public Health Committee to clean closets and attics and get rid of "extras" they can't use but which are too good to throw away. What may be one man's trash is another man's treasure and these treasurers can finance projects to benefit the community.

Items may be left at the home of Mrs. Sheldon Fuller on Main Street.

The regular meeting of the committee will be held Thursday, Jan. 28 at the home of Mrs. Robert Finger in Saugerties. This will not be a working meeting as previous planned but will be a business and planning meeting for the rummage sale.

Shirts and slacks are still needed for future working meetings. These materials may be left at Montano's Shoe Store.

Legion Post Auxiliary No. 1026 Aiding Hospitalized Veterans

Four members of the Auxiliary of American Legion Post No. 1026 worked at Albany Veterans Hospital Gift Shop recently aiding wheelchair veterans in gift decisions for their loved ones.

In addition to monetary contributions to the Gift Shop, many handmade afghans, quilts, books and electric razors were donated. The hospitalized veterans' needs are continuous as is their gratitude. They make constant use of model kits, playing cards, and spend many hours at games which many persons discard. The Post and Auxiliary welcomes any re-usable items.

During the December holidays, gifts were distributed to 35 area children. The holiday spirit continued the following week when members and guests enjoying a buffet and musical program.

Members are planning additional ways to aid the veterans during 1971.

How to Hang on to Good Husband

How do you rate as a mate? Are you great — or are you a louse as a spouse? Though your best friends — including friend husband — may not want to tell you, you can arrive at a pretty accurate answer by quizzing yourself about the things you do and say.

Here are some questions to which you should be able to answer "I do!" But do you:

Spend his money wisely? Many a husband feels that one more "final sale" will be the last straw! Remember: a bargain is something you want and need, available at a lower-than-usual price; if it doesn't meet this test, it isn't a bargain. Remember, too, that there are times when the higher-priced of two items is the real buy: china costs more than earthenware, but is much less breakable.

Cook his favorite foods often? even if he likes something you consider bad for him, he should be able to digest it once a week without dire effects. Besides, many low-calorie cookbooks offer non-fattening, nutritious ways to prepare old favorites.

Keep yourself energetic and even-tempered for him? He'll enjoy his leisure hours more if you are smiling and unfrazzled at the end of the day. No matter how hectic your schedule, make at least one relaxation a part of it — either an afternoon nap or a feet-up-on-the-hassock "rest period."

Help him start the day right? Most men are grumpiest when they wake up — so why add fuel to the fire? Make sure he sees a pretty sight: hair neatly combed, lips enlivened with a trace of lipstick, and soft skin he'll love to touch. And remember, this is the time of year that wind and weather team up with water and detergents to dry your skin. Do use special care preparations, like A and C Cream, to protect and restore its softness.

Entertain to do him proud? Treating his family and friends royally when they come to visit is a supreme compliment to him — and it's easier and less costly than you might imagine. Ample portions of simple fare usually make a better impression than a wide assortment of exotic foods with just a dab of each.

Just as important as your actions are your attitudes, as revealed in the things you say (or don't say) to and about your mate. Do you:

Build him up in public and keep his secrets? Fidelity is more than a matter of staying monogamous. You're being disloyal each time you recite "cute" anecdotes that make him look small... correct or interrupt him in front of friends... or tell friends and relatives things they have no right to know.

Compare him favorably to other husbands you know? Instead of pointing out to him how much more other husbands in the neighborhood are making, etc. — concentrate on praising and polishing his good points. You may soon have something that Mrs. Jones will try to keep up with.

Accept him as he is without trying to change him? Any "reform" campaign is not only hard on the vocal chords and the marriage ties, but futile besides; the only person who can change your mate is friend spouse himself. You married him for what he was — or did you?

Tell him the good things that happened during the day? Avoid a long recital of the day's problems and woes — especially if there's little or nothing he can do about them. Chances are he's had a heck of a day too.

Try the same flattery you used before you married him? It worked then — why shouldn't it work now? Try it again... and really listen when your husband speaks. Both actions are great headaches.

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

Most of the time we take TV commercials for granted. They are preposterous, incredible, downright silly. If a grain of sense of wit creeps in, as it did with the beer ads of a year or so ago, it doesn't last long. So listeners to a news broadcast, a football game, or a play wait patiently for the hair spray, the mouthwash, the dog food to get over with so the show can go on.

Maybe we should feel sorry for the producers of commercials. They work so hard. The other night we saw a row of shiny automobiles lined up. A man came in, was seized with a paroxysm of some sort, the cars began to fall apart. What was the matter? He had a bad cough and needed X's cough medicine. Later in the program we saw a very frouse-headed young man with a pretty girl bending over his curly locks. She seemed to be looking for something. Perhaps she had lost her compact. But no, she had a pair of nail scissors and was clipping a hair here and there, giving him a hair cut. Nobody would ever guess what the point was. It was an ad for wine, and with the bottle cradled in the young man's arms they embraced nail scissors and all.

People who watch TV more regularly than we do must get used to these episodes, for they are repeated in show after show. A friend in a neighboring town says repeated for a year! We listen to the radio news every morning before breakfast. Two commercials alternate, one for aluminum siding, one for a Connecticut bank. Every other day, regular as clockwork, we hear how to cover your house so that you will never, never have to paint it again. Of course the aluminum siding costs more than several paint jobs but no matter. For the bank ad, a woman sings. I used to think she sang in Polish or some other difficult language, but close attention on my part and relentless repetition on hers have sorted it out for me. I rather wish I didn't know. Polish was better. She is saying that people differ: some like checking accounts, some like savings. The bank will oblige. Is this worth singing in a flat voice and a dull little tune, every morning forever? I only ask. Since the song comes in the middle of the weather broadcast we wait to hear, we are obliged to listen to the bank song.

I know that TV costs money; even radio does. I know we could never see the World Series or 1936 movies or the election results without paying. I would cheerfully give time at the beginning of each broadcast for a few minutes of names with pictures; Blank's beer, the National Bank, aspirin and its relatives, even something to keep your breath sweet. I might even promise to watch all sales pitches, one after the other. But please, after they are over, couldn't I just see the show, whatever it might be, without those over elaborate little dramas? Please, couldn't I?

Legs Are on the Loose for the Summer

By ALINE MOSBY.
PARIS—Paris banished the leggy look for winter but it will stride back on the scene in a limited way come spring and summer.

French designers will open their spring collections next Monday and the advance word is the mini and maxiskirts are to be sheaved for the warmer weather. But no, the mini is not back with a great sweep.

Most houses are creating dresses about the "Chanel length," just below the knee, because shorter skirts are cooler for the new season than the leg-hiding midis and maxis. The length is named for Coco Chanel, the French designer who died Jan. 10. She clung to a classic length no matter what other designers did.

As for the pants trend, Paris plans to show the leg almost completely, but more for amusement than for a basic fashion. Silk and velvet short shorts of the miniest of lengths for evening are said by couture sources to be in the shows of Jean Patou, Ted Lapidus, Torrente, Andre Courreges and Jeanne Lanvin. Discreet daytime versions are even promised for the Hubert de Givenchy collection, disguised a bit by skirts for women who've long since passed their teens.

Madeleine de Rauch, a more conservative designer, promises to display shorts only for sportswear. Marc Bohan of the Dior salon insists that short shorts belong only in a vacation wardrobe, not on the street.

Most of the Paris designers have sworn off long-trouser suits and knickers.

Boots are gone and several salons still are determined to revive those platform soled shoes of the 1940s.

Some advance news from the individual salons:

—Marc Bohan at Dior: "Neither mini or maxi, but skirts just below the knee. No more sad colors. I wish to rejuvenate women by 10 years."

—Yves St. Laurent: "Half the collection is long, half is short. Women can choose."

—J. W. Cragay at Lanvin: "Tiny shoulders, natural waistline, culotte skirts, skirts just below the knee... shorts for sports and for dinner no more boots but dark stockings."

—Courreges: "Casual short clothes for the young, a sensible short length for others."

Asia's Mod Women Resist the Maxi

By PATRICK J. KILLERN
MANILA—Asia's modern young women are voting visibly to keep skirts short.

The maxi is just too much—particularly in the hotter climes. To many of the big city girls, the long dress represents a return to traditional clothes they have struggled to leave behind.

The maxi, or local versions thereof, has been covering Asian limbs for years.

It is the sari in India, Pakistan and Ceylon, the kimono in Japan, the hanbok in Korea, the Maria Clara or terno in the Philippines, the ao dai in Vietnam and the sarong in Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and Burma. All are to the detriment of the dedicated "legman."

The cheong san, that high necked, Chinese dress with the often provocative slit skirt, formerly provided the only flash of thigh in an otherwise heavily draped world. Even then, most of the Chinese girls seldom allowed the slit above the knee.

The mini was slow in coming but it has caught on and is still on the ascendancy in the Philippines, South Korea, at least in Seoul, and in Japan. Girl watchers in Tokyo say the sudden outbreak of maxis this winter is only seasonal and the mini will bloom again with the cherry blossoms in the spring.

The most modern girls in Singapore, Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur and Bangkok also like the minis but they remain in the minority.

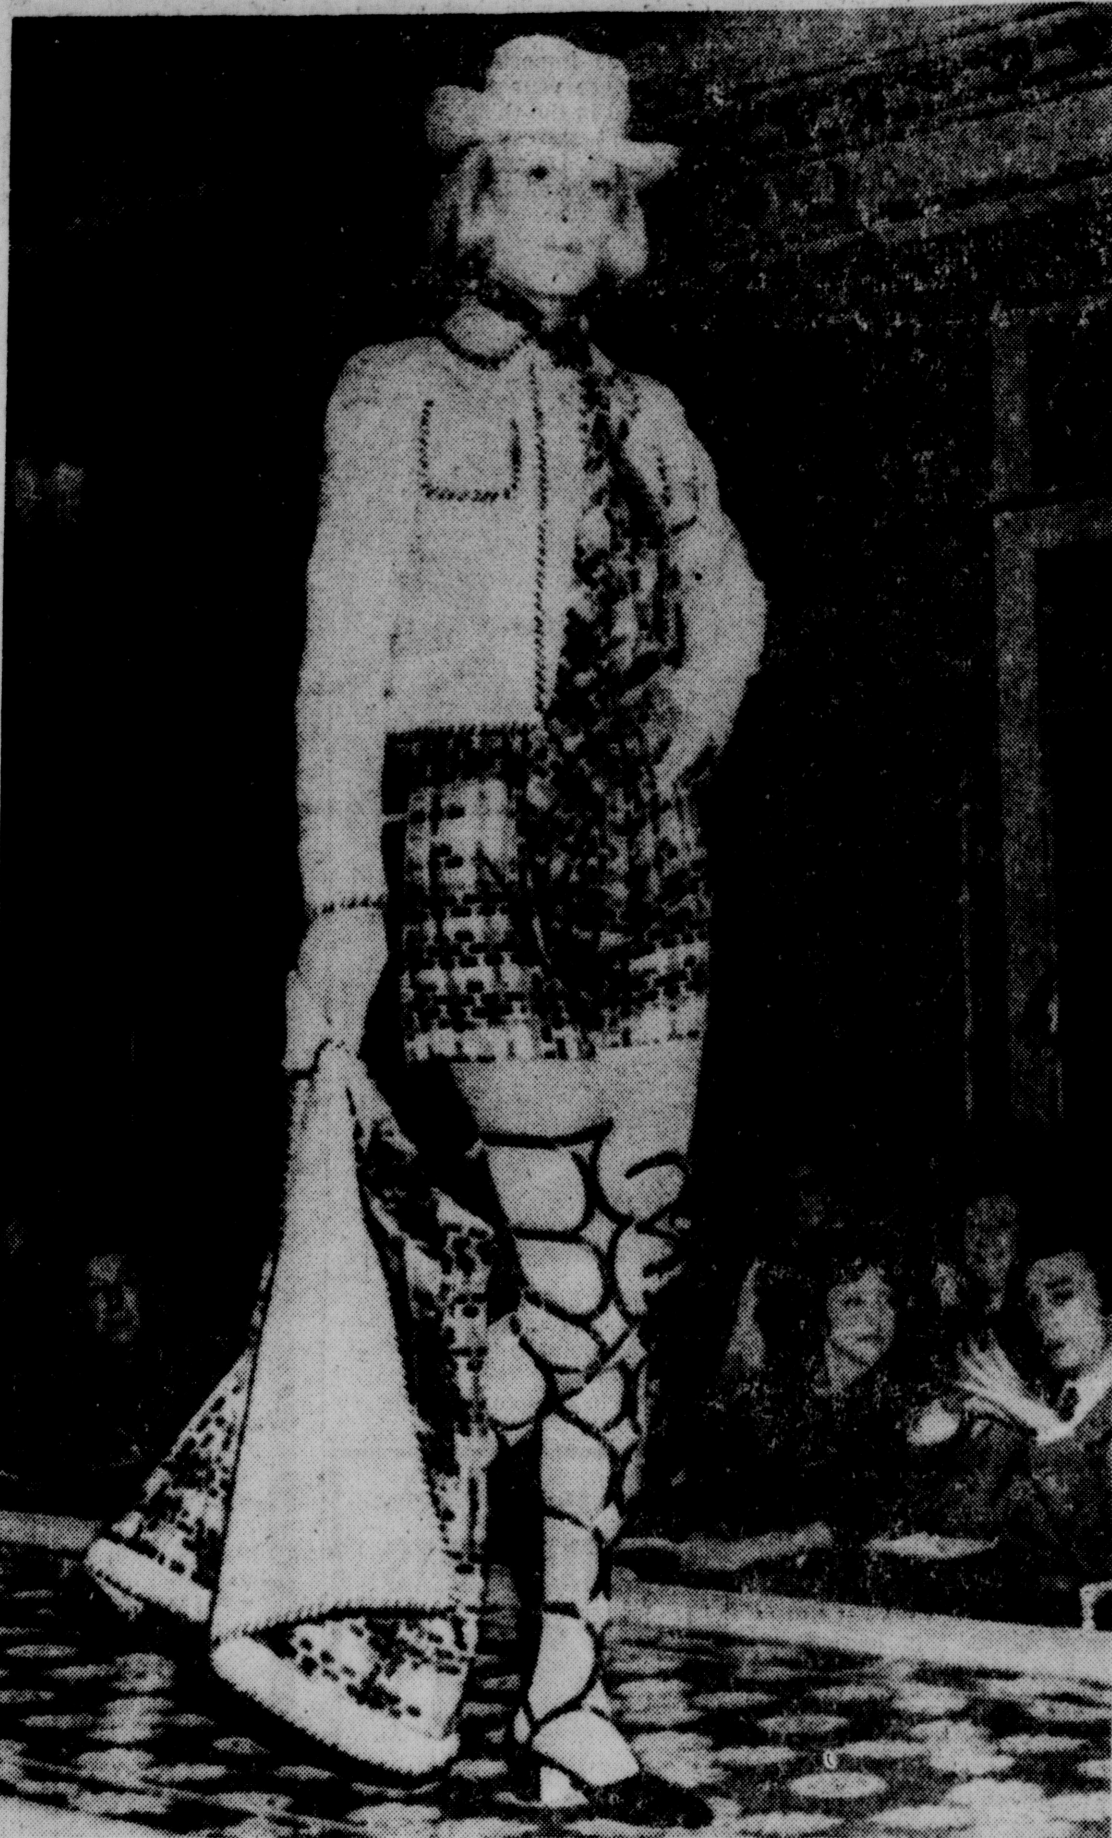

To Malay girls, traditionally conservative, the year's most exciting dress has been a mini with a bare midriff or strategically placed cutouts. Only a few of the most daring have doffed their floor-length sarongs for such outfits.

Fans of the mini skirts in Manila suffered a temporary when Imelda Marcos, the long-stemmed beauty queen who is married to the Philippine president, arrived home in October from a trip to Europe and the United States, attired in maxi.

Philippine matrons made some attempts at imitating the fair first lady but short skirts prevailed.

More popular in the Philippines and Japan was the pant suit which became standard attire for parties and the opera.

Like the maxi, the pant suit was not new to Asia either. Pakistani girls have been wearing the salwar kamiz and Vietnamese girls the graceful ao dai, each with trousered legs, for centuries.

A MAD MIX of contemporary fashion, including a shorts-suit outfit and sandal-like shoes with leg-climbing straps, is seen at the showing of Titta Brugnoli's latest collection in Rome. The wrap suit skirt, lined in the sand-colored fabric of the suit jacket and worn over the matching brown-line plaid one-piece shorts outfit, can be donned for a more conservative look. Evening Dresses Also Reveal Legs

By ODETTE MENGIN
ROME—Capucci said no to shorts today in his spring and summer collection, but some of his creations showed more of the leg than shorts would have.

Many of his large selection of imaginative evening dresses consisted of one long panel open at the top for the head, joined at the waist under a wide belt, and reaching to the floor. But they revealed the entire leg.

Other dresses had gathered pleats in pink over lilac over mauve at the sides.

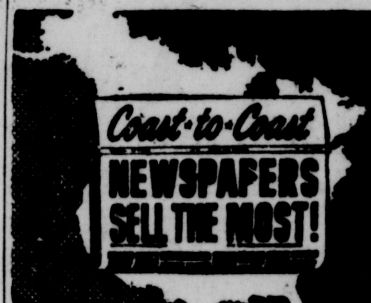

Another designer, Andre Laug, presented two pairs of shorts in his evening collection, his only concession to the new style.

His creations were crisp and neat. He liked soft wool coats and shirt dresses in printed silk. He showed paillette suits in bright green, orange and blue. Similar evening dresses were stitched like woven cloth.

Both Capucci and Laug had two lengths: to the floor in the evening, and just below the knee—the Chanel look—for day.

Designers who showed their weekend seemed to be waging a war over whether women should be graceful and feminine or sporty and boyish this spring.

As the showings of spring and summer collections went into the fourth day today, no definite trend had emerged. Some designers—Marucelli, for one—still covered up women from head to toe, while San Lorenzo dressed them in short gardener's overalls.

LIVELY PRINTED CITY SHORTS OUTFITS such as the outfit modeled in left photo promise the leggy look to be alive and kicking in spring 1971 fashions. But even long skirts will be open to the idea, with slits up the sides. In right photo, a long siren slink in blazing orange, purple and green is slit to reveal patterned hose underneath. Special Program Slated Friday
The P.T.O. of the George Washington School will sponsor a special assembly for the students on the Life of the American Winnebago Indian on Friday.
Machi-hna-shne-gha, better known in the Kingston area as Herb Dick, and his wife Margaret, will appear in full Winnebago regalia. Machi-hna-shne-gha, meaning "standing on the sky" in Winnebago, will explain the customs of his tribe. He will demonstrate some Indian dances and explain their meanings, accompanied by his wife on the drum. The talk promises to help the students understand life on an Indian Reservation.

NOTICE OF CHANGE IN ELECTRIC AND GAS RATE SCHEDULES
On December 23, 1970, Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation filed with the Public Service Commission of the State of New York a new electric rate schedule, P.S.C. No. 14—Electricity, and amendments to present gas rate schedule, P.S.C. No. 11—Gas, which became effective January 15, 1971. The major changes proposed by this filing as it affects customers other than those in the area formerly served by the Ellenville Electric Company, are set forth in the following comparison of present and proposed rates for individual classes of service. Complete rate schedules are available for public inspection at Company offices.

Mathews and Elder Headed for Garden

DAVE MATHEWS and JIM ELDER, two promising young heavyweights in the Peers Boxing Camp here are scheduled to make their next bouts in Madison Square Garden, according to trainer Joe Fariello.

Mathews, 14-0, will be fighting the main event Friday night in the Felt Forum at the Garden. His opponent will be the always-tough Willie Burton. The winner of this bout will fight the semi-final match on the Joe Frazier-Cassius Clay card at the Garden March 8.

POUGHKEEPSIE

The up again, down again Ulster County Community College Senators picked up their tenth win of the season here Wednesday, as a super performance by Glenn Berry paced the Stone Ridge visitors to an 88-70 edge over the Marist College freshmen.

The 6'3" UCCC captain from Long Island City was a veritable dynamo in scoring 30 points, latching onto 29 rebounds, and handing off five assists. And he did a good deal of the damage playing with four personal fouls.

Berry's 12 for 17 field goal performance buoyed his mates to produce another excellent squad showing from the floor. In all U-Tri-C swished 38 of 70 tries for a whopping 57 per cent. The Senators were also tough from the foul lane missing only seven of 19 attempts.

Despite all the impressive figures, Marist made a good ball game out of what could easily have been a rout. The Fox frosh started out crisply with a sharp 11 of 19 from the field in the early going to take a 26-19 lead. But Pat Harder, Rich DeLoza, and George Civile combined for 20 points to put Ulster in front comfortably, 41-32, before last minute Marist goals reduced the margin to 41-36.

The second half was all Berry's. Despite playing the last 11 minutes with the four personals, Glenn scored 19 points. When on defense Ulster went in to a zone to keep Berry away from committing the miscues with which he might otherwise have been charged had UCCC stayed with a man-to-man.

Gary McDonald and Roger Govantes gave the Senators a lift during this span as well. McDonald led the UCCC fast break and hit 11 of his 13 markers and Govantes collected ten of his final 18.

Harder and DeLoza did yeoman like work on both backboards as they aided Berry with nine rebounds respectively. The win pushed the Ulster record to 10-7. Post Junior College of Connecticut is next on the schedule on the road Saturday. The Senators return to the Field House next Thursday for a Mid-Hudson Conference get-together with Orange Community.

Pro Bowl Has Old Rivalry

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There are strong indications, including the words of Jim Otto and the vote for team captains on the American Conference All-Star squad, that Sunday's Pro Bowl will have one element the Super Bowl lacked—the deep emotion of the old AFL-NFL rivalry.

The majority of the players on the American Conference team are from the old AFL, said Otto, an 11-year veteran who goes back to the AFL's beginning. "So from that standpoint, it's almost like AFL versus NFL."

That fact would seem to be underscored by the selection of captains for the game in which 40-man squads from the AFC and NFC will tangle Sunday at 1 p.m. PST in the final contest of pro football's first season under its new two-conference structure.

In the vote for captains Wednesday, the AFC players, with 32 representatives from old AFL teams, selected a quintet of former AFLers as their leaders—Otto, quarterback Darrel Lamonica and Cornerback Willie Brown from Oakland, and linebacker Willie Lanier and defensive end Jerry Mays from Kansas City.

Left on the outside were the eight players from the three teams that joined the 10 AFL clubs in the AFC this season, including linebacker Mike Curtis, defensive end Bubba Smith and safety Jerry Logan from the Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts.

But then this game, as Otto sees it, means more to those whose talent was denied in the early years of the AFL than to any newcomers.

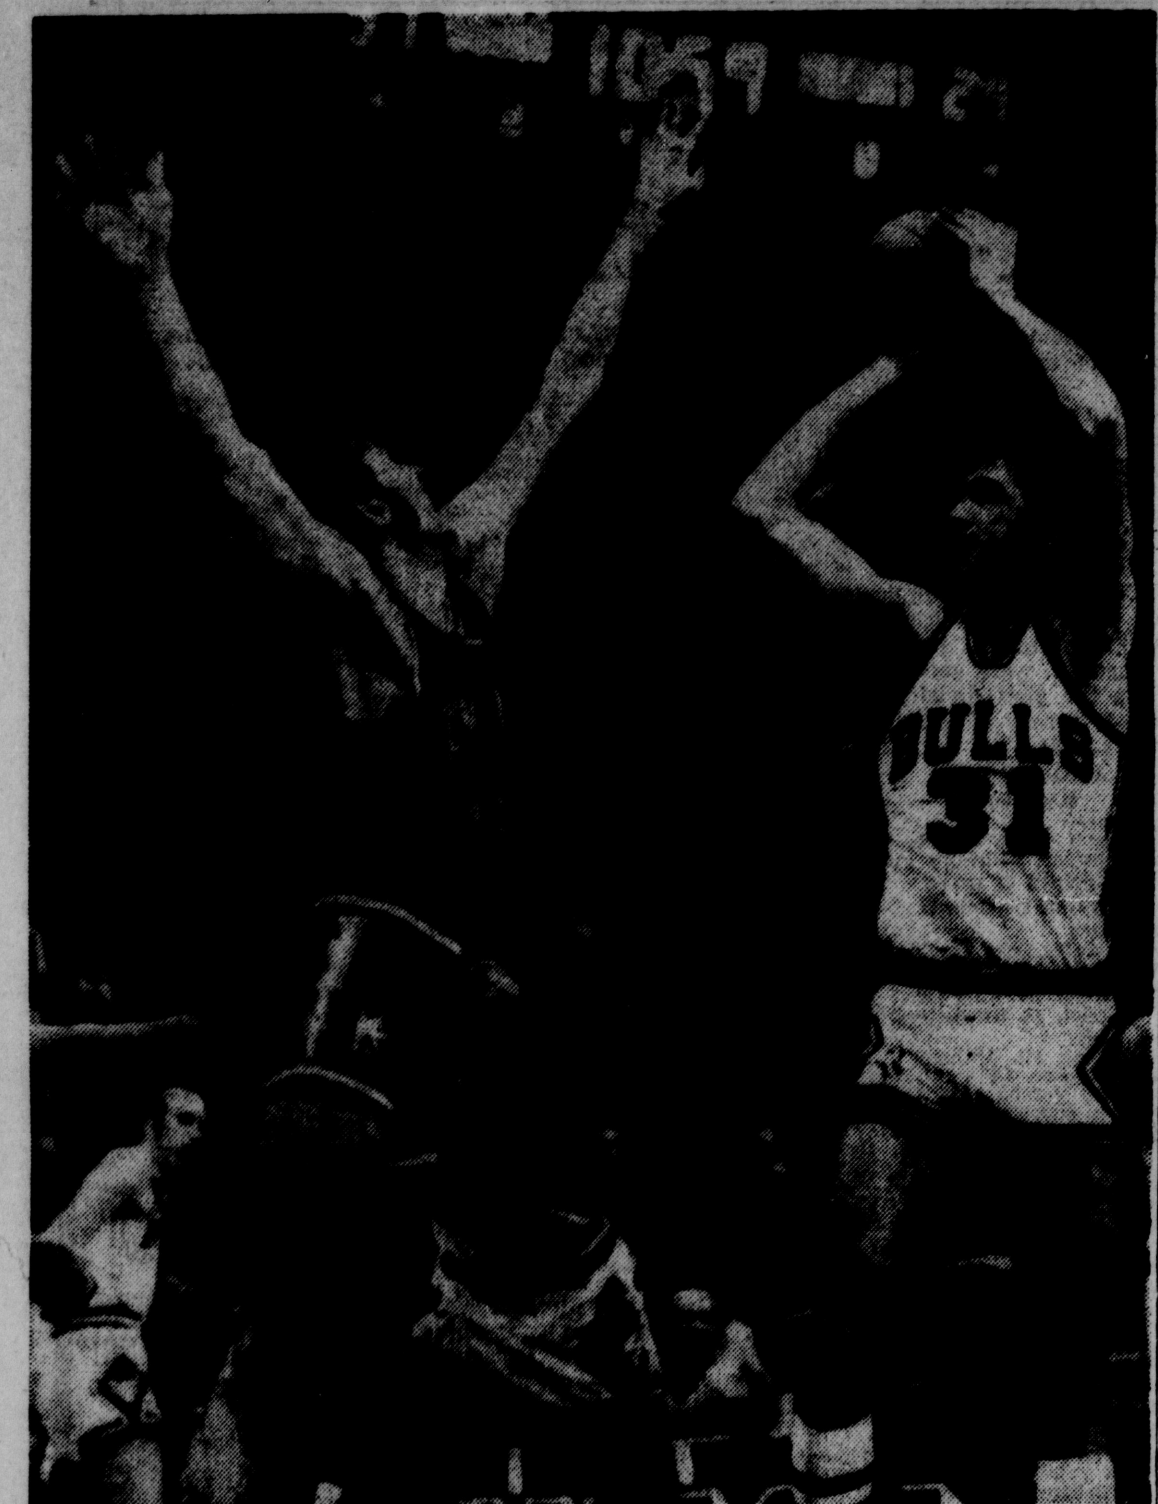

"We're all here to play for one purpose—to make the AFC a winner," Otto explained. "But the old AFL player probably will be playing with a pride he wouldn't have if he was a rookie. It's not that we're not happy to have Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh as part of the AFL All-Star game and

"It's just that this is the big people would ask if the AFL had one for the Willie Browns, the Johnny Robinsons, the Walt that kind of thing and you get Sweeneys—the game we wanted tired of it."

Mays, however, doesn't feel the AFL-NFL factor as deeply as he thought he would, and he cites the NFL orientation of the Dallas-Baltimore Super Bowl as

"Every year, after I played a major reason."

Haywood Is Doing Battle in Uniform

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spencer Haywood's battle in the federal courts continues at a standstill... but he's certainly not standing still on a basketball court.

While the legal hassle continued over his jump from the American Basketball Association to the National, Haywood fired in 23 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead Seattle over Atlanta 112-108 in the NBA Wednesday night.

Haywood was playing only hours after the U.S. Court of Appeals sat in San Francisco and the court took his case under advisement. Haywood, the former University of Detroit star, quit a $1.9 million contract with Denver of the ABA earlier this year, sparking the legal arguments.

Atlanta became the 11th straight opponent to protest a Seattle game because of the appearance of Haywood, who is not recognized by the NBA as an official player.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, Milwaukee whipped Baltimore 120-116; Buffalo ripped Portland 126-106; Chicago tripped New York 109-103; Boston tamed San Diego 142-112 and Cincinnati defeated Phoenix 126-114.

In the ABA, it was New York 113, Floridians 106; Carolina 114, Virginia 104 and Memphis 120, Denver 103.

Haywood went the full 48 minutes for the first time in the NBA as he sparked an early Seattle lead. Then reserve Barry Clemens and player-coach Lennie Wilkens combined for 21 last-quarter points to stop Atlanta's comeback try.

Lew Alcindor scored 39 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to lead Milwaukee over Baltimore, the 10th straight victory for the Bucks. Alcindor scored four of his points to give Milwaukee a 116-112 lead with 1½ minutes to play, then blocked Wes Unseld's layup attempt with under a minute left.

Buffalo scored the game's first goal and never lost the lead, hitting 18 straight free throws at the start, to beat fellow expansionist Portland.

Chicago wasted most of a 21-point lead, and held off a flurry by New York's Willis Reed and straight points as Boston broke open a close game with San Diego early in the third period and Tom Van Arsdale and Norm Van Lier combined for 66 points for Cincinnati.

All-Star Ballot Rules Changed

NEW YORK (UPI)—A total of 64 players' names will be on the ballots which baseball fans will use to select the starting lineups in the 1971 All-Star game, it was announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn, in announcing that the fans will select the teams, fans, moved to avert another "Rico Carty incident" by expanding the list of names which will appear on the ballots.

Carty's name did not appear on the 1970 ballot although he was leading the National League in batting at the time of the voting and wound up winning the batting title with a .366 average. Carty made the team on the strength of write-in votes but Kuhn, who organized the computerized voting system, was criticized for the oversight. He pointed out that the ballots had to be made up before the season because of technical problems.

The 1971 ballot will have eight nominations for each of the infield and catching positions and 24 for the three outfield berths compared with last year's system of six for each of the four infield and catching positions and 18 for the three outfield berths. The write-in provision will be continued.

Sawyers Defeat Beacon on Mats

Domination in the heavier weight classes gave Saugerties High School a 26-33 wrestling victory over Beacon here Wednesday.

Beginning with Bob Houtman's quick pin of John Van Tassel at 49 seconds of the 145 lb. bout, the Sawyers four of the final events to nose out the home grapplers.

Jim Redder got Saugerties off on the right track with a 98 lb. decision, but the Sawyers proceeded to lose the next four divisions before a forfeit win at 132 lbs. by Don Quessend ended that string.

But with Houtman putting Saugerties back on the right track, the winners came up victorious in three more classes to clinch their second triumph in five meets.

Scott Hill, Bob Brady, and Leon Powell were the final Sawyer point getters. Saugerties has a meet on Jan. 27 with John Jay.

The summaries:

Saugerties 26 — Beacon 33

98 lb.—Jim Redder (S) dec. Tom Dunderdale (B), 8-0.

105 lb.—Mike Davis (B) dec. Craig Miller (S), 9-4.

112 lb.—Mike Speyer (B) won by forfeit.

119 lb.—Brian Mortensen (B) pinned Bill Anderson (S), 1:02.

126 lb.—Greg Harland (B) pinned Cary McMahon (S), 2:18.

132 lb.—Don Quessend (S) won by forfeit.

138 lb.—No contest.

145 lb.—Bob Houtman (S) pinned John Van Tassel (B), 49 seconds.

155 lb.—Scott Hill (S) dec. Tom Mensinger (B), 8-0.

167 lb.—Charles Shebanie (B) pinned Ken Hallion (S), 3:22.

177 lb.—Bob Brady (S) pinned Bob Mazzacane (B), 1:40.

Heavyweight — Leon Powell (S) pinned Phil Dima (B), 1:46.

Berra Is Closest

Nobody Makes It Into Hall of Fame

By ED SCHUYLER, JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Baseball Writers Association of America did not elect today a candidate for enshrinement in the baseball Hall of Fame.

Yogi Berra, who set all sorts of endurance and hitting records as a catcher for the New York Yankees, came closest with 242 votes.

This was 28 shy of the 270 needed for election.

Three hundred and sixty bal-cent is needed for election. This was the largest ballot in history.

Tolan's Accident Major Blow to Reds

By MILTON RICHMAN

UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Bobby Tolan, who'll be out until June, wasn't too long removed from surgery when they told him he had a long distance call.

He picked up the phone alongside his hospital bed in Cincinnati and Sparky Anderson was on the line from his home in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

"Besides hurting yourself you've also caused me a lot of grief," the Reds' manager said to his centerfielder.

"What's that?" Tolan asked.

"I have to manage now," Anderson told him.

Both laughed. Not for long though. Both realize the enormity of Tolan's recent freak accident in which he tore the Achilles tendon in his right heel during a basketball game. The accident was a freak one because Tolan wasn't even touched. Playing on the same team with such other Cincinnati baseballers as Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, Lee May, Jim Stewart and recently-traded Jim Maloney, Tolan was going after a loose ball when he suddenly felt as if somebody had stepped on his foot or kicked him. Pop! Just like that the Reds were minus a .316 hitting centerfielder. Until next June at least.

Bobby Tolan already has begun his recuperative process in the hospital and he's talking about coming back before June but he's going to find it's not that easy. A torn Achilles tendon is not like a fracture. It generally takes longer to heal. Much longer. Ask Bill White sometime.

Sparky Anderson originally received the bad news about what had happened to Tolan in a phone call from Bob Howsam, the Reds' general manager. Anderson's first reaction was "oh, no!"

"I felt bad, especially for Bobby," Anderson says. "I felt bad for the ball club also."

It's rather typical of Sparky Anderson that he thought of the ballplayer first and then of the ball club. He's an organization man through and through but before that he's a unique manager, the type who has a pronounced tendency to think of his players before he thinks of himself.

"I like basketball," Anderson says, "but I was against our players playing it because I was afraid somebody would get hurt. It was a freak accident. He wasn't even touched. A lot of people say accidents will happen and that it could've happened crossing the street. All I say is I hate to see somebody trying to do something he's not professional at. Like football or basketball players trying to play softball. They can hurt themselves so easily. They slide, they don't know how to do it properly and the first thing you know it happens."

If he had to start the season today Anderson would move Rose to center, Bernie Carbo to right and Hal McRae to left. That could change off what happens in spring training. Or maybe a deal may be made.

"I know one thing," Anderson says. "I feel we're a good ball club, and if you're a good ball club you can't let one person stop you from winning. We'll never use Bobby Tolan as an out. I don't think I'll ever mention what happened to him. This is no knock at Bobby. I consider him a fine young player and I look for him to do a great deal in the future."

"But you have to be realistic. Joe DiMaggio came and went ... Mickey Mantle came and went ... Ted Williams came and went ... Their ball clubs continued on. The Cincinnati club must keep going the same way and I believe it will."

"You remember Paul Blair was hurt so bad last year. Baltimore kept winning. If you're a good ball club you compensate for injury. I feel Cincinnati is that good a ball club."

The future of the Reds' basketball team is in doubt right now although the team has said it will go through with two charity games it had scheduled. Up until Tolan's injury, Sparky Anderson had been having a good winter back home in Thousand Oaks. Despite the Reds' loss to the Orioles in the World Series, Anderson was given the key to the city by the Chamber of Commerce and he was asked to address the Elks, the Lions, the Kiwanis and practically every other group in town.

"People back home were so nice that I had to tell 'em we didn't really win," Sparky Anderson says.

About Sitzmarks

By CHARLES J. TIANO, Sports Editor

The Conservation Department reports that this winter there are probably about 50,000 ski tourists roaming over the landscapes in the Northeast, and their numbers are increasing rapidly — like doubling every second year.

This number may be peanuts when compared with the vast number of downhill skiers who flock to the slopes every weekend, says the Department, but it looks just like the ticket for us. We have always been allergic to blurred landscapes. In the winter wonderland, it's much nicer to see everything in perfect focus.

Part of the joy, too, is getting away from the mob and being on your own, avoiding broken bones and long hospital stays. You may travel on your own initiative and don't have to be annoyed by insufferable delays on lift lines.

MANY A SKI TOURER is a retreat who was surprised to find out that the old skis with bear trap bindings that were condemned as unsafe for modern ski slopes, and have been sitting in the garage for years, are just fine for ski touring. The snowplow turn is a respected maneuver, in fact any turn that gets you around the corner standing is fine. Even falling down to stop is acceptable!

Though much downhill ski equipment of 20 years ago can be adapted readily to cross country skiing, current ski equipment is not interchangeable. The key to control while downhill skiing is an immobile contact between ski and boot, while the cross country skier must have a very flexible contact which permits the heel to be easily raised from the ski. This flexibility makes unnecessary the quick release which is a requirement for the safety of the downhill skier.

NEW CROSS COUNTRY skis have several improvements over the old wooden skis. They are much lighter, both from slimmer construction and from being made of lighter wood. They are also much more flexible, particularly at the tip so that they can glide over bumps in the trail. This also means that they will not take the beating. This is even more true of racing skis, which should be avoided by anyone not intending to run on a packed trail all the time.

The difference between the boots is as great as the difference between the skis. Instead of heavy stiff boots of the downhill skier, boots used by the Nordic or "tour skier" are extremely light and pliable, some being low cut, and weighing no more than a pair of baseball shoes. Many skiers don't even use ski boots, but just a pair of good hiking boots.

THE OTHER BIG difference between Alpine and Nordic skiing is wax. The Alpine skier's only concern is that the wax lets him get down the hill as fast as possible. The Nordic skier wants a wax that will let him slide when he is going downhill, but which will grip the snow and not slide when he is going uphill. As improbable as such a wax may sound, it has been developed.

It is found that if resin was added to the wax to make it stickier, it would slide if vertical pressure was applied. For warmer and wetter snow more resin was needed. Under warm conditions a "wax" which is a honey-like liquid, called a klistur, is used. Obviously, the choice of the correct wax is vital to good tour skiing.

If the wax is too hard for snow conditions, the skis won't grip to climb; if the wax is too soft, they won't slide. A blue hard wax for powder and a red klistur for wet or granular snow will get you through most situations, if you don't want to carry a half dozen varieties.

MANY A POTENTIAL skiing family has been turned off when they saw the price tag on equipping the whole family. Ski touring equipment is in an entirely different price range. Good skis and bindings can be purchased for $30, though if you look hard enough you can find skis costing twice that much.

Good boots go for about $25 and a pair of poles is $5-$8. Another $10 or $12 for wax, scrapers and torch and you are in the ski touring business. Used equipment is there for the finding. Arthur Woldt, the public relations officer of the Department, said that one couple he met recently got their skis and bindings at a rummage sale for 10 cents a pair.

A little practice on the local golf course and you will be ready to start out cross country on hiking trails, log roads or across open fields, enjoying the silence of this do-it-yourself snow travel.

SCHUSSNOTES — Two Hunter Mountain Ski Club youngsters, Holly Brown and Carl Levine won their respective divisions in the 11th annual Ricky Cramer Memorial Race. The race is held in honor of the late Ricky Cramer, one of the Catskills' most promising skiers who was killed in an auto accident. . . . Following their strong performances in Buffalo, Hunter pro racers Hugo Nindl (2nd) and Kurt Rcher (5th) are set for the pro tour when they arrive at Hunter Mountain on Feb. 3-4-5. Top pro racers will participate in the exciting events.

I wouldn't walk across the street to watch a snowmobile race, but it's a sport that has mushroomed in spectacular style over the past few years. Monticello Raceway was unable to establish a snowmobile circuit on a steady basis at the Sullivan County oval, but occasional spot races attract tremendous turnouts.

The Northeastern U.S. Snowmobile Championships will be held Jan. 30-31 at Malone, N.Y. . . . Wetaskin, Alberta (in Canada of course) is offering the biggest purse for any snowmobile race in North America this year—$70,000. The biggest snowmobile race purse in 1970 — $50,000 — was offered by the King's Castle Grand Prix at Lake Tahoe, Nevada.

The $70,000 classic is expected to attract about 300 drivers, including crack factory teams from all over Canada, the United States and possibly Europe.

KILLINGTON SKI AREA in central Vermont, developer of the popular Graduated Length Method of ski teaching, has changed the name of its short-ski program to the "Accelerated Ski Method."

According to Foster Chandler, Killington marketing director, "the Graduated Length Method as taught at Killington has been refined to the point where it now incorporates much more than just a short ski approach to skiing."

Chandler said that the teaching system now uses sophisticated psychological techniques, pre-lesson orientation clinics, specially developed equipment and teaching slope, as well as revolutionary philosophies on how to teach.

"The reason we changed the name to the Accelerated Ski Method was because the Graduated Length Method no longer accurately describes the teaching system we use at Killington," said Chandler.

In other words, under this new system you are likely to leave fewer and fewer sitzmarks.

USLTA Is Ungallant, Say Billie Jean King

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The waukee opponent defaulted because of illness. The opening night drew 350 persons.

Meanwhile tourney sponsors said fourth-seeded Nancy Richey Ginter of San Angelo, Tex., bowed out of the Milwaukee meet for a tonsillotomy, and probably would also miss the meets in Oklahoma City and Chattanooga.

Darlene Hard, a former national titlist, also withdrew, reporting trouble with a leg muscle.

The association had declined last fall to sanction increases in women's prize money in relation to winnings of men in the Pacific Southwest meet in Los Angeles.

Association officials "have lost touch with the women's segment of tennis," Mrs. King 27, said.

She is top-seeded in the $12,500 U.S. Women's Professional Tennis Tournament Brook Club meet, and leads the circuits money earnings with $7,050.

The Californian said she has been considering some sort of protest boycott for several years "if the rest of the girls would back me up. But it never materialized."

"Everyone claims the men get better crowds," she said, "but at their Los Angeles tournament, they only drew 2,000 while we got 3,500 in Long Helling, St. Louis."

Allie Clarke, winner of one semifinalists who start match Wednesday when her Mil-tion title, opened with a modest $11,111.

Barry Asher, champion of Costa Mesa, Calif., averaged 238 pins per game Wednesday to take a 68-pin lead into today's third round of the $77,777 Showboat Invitational bowling tournament.

The 25-year-old right-hander, third in last week's Denver Open, started out with a 1,388 block, then roared back with a 1,462 to show 2,850 for his day's effort as he built a sizeable advantage over lefthander Don Helling, St. Louis.

She won her first Brook Club Professional Bowlers Association match Wednesday when her Mil-tion title, opened with a modest $11,111.

NCAA Changes Rules on Blocking — The NCAA Football Rules Committee made its first change in offensive blocking in 30 years Wednesday, and chairman John Waldorf warned, "If this doesn't stop the injuries, we'll expand the rule to perhaps banning all below-waist blocking."

The new blocking change prevents what is termed "crack-back" blocking toward the line of scrimmage below the waist in an area within five yards of the present permitted clipping zone is four yards on each side of the center and three yards on each side of the line of scrimmage.

Although concerned about the rising number of knee injuries, the college football rules makers held their fire on putting in a stiffer measure.

Other rule changes among the 19 passed concerned punts into the end zone and possible shortening of games through mutual consent of the officials and team captains.

Under the new rule a punt that hits in the end zone without touching a player on the receiving team will be returned to the 20-yard line. There were instances this season where punts hit the end zone and spun back on the field of play.

Under a new rule the referee, with the consent of the two team captains, can shorten the game such as in a runaway score.

Two rules passed involved the shortening of the length of the games. Time outs were trimmed from four to three each half per team. Also, the clock will be stopped after a penalty only until the ball is ready for play.

Other rule changes included: —When two opposing players catch the ball at the same time, each receiver must have at least one foot in bounds for the simultaneous catch to be ruled.

The offensive team gets the ball.

—Position of the ball on the bounce after a fumble or lateral pass will be determined by whether or not the player who recovers has at least one foot in bounds at the time of recovery.

—It is a foul to "spear"—driving one's helmet into any opponent's body. The previous rule made it a foul only when a player speared the man carrying the ball.

—All fouls made behind the line of scrimmage by the defense will result in penalties being walked off from the line of scrimmage, not from the point of the foul.

Dolphins Rout Their Old Coach

Trounce Furman Five, 94-60

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

How do you handle a 7-foot-2 basketball player?

Very carefully.

That's what some teams have been doing this year against Artis Gilmore and sixth-ranked Jacksonville—playing a slower, more deliberate style.

Furman was extra careful, too Wednesday night. But it didn't help.

Gilmore owned the territory around the basket, as usual, and Jacksonville flicked away Furman 94-60 to spoil a "homecoming" for former Dolphin Coach Joe Williams.

Williams was the architect of story, culminating his efforts with the runner-up spot in last year's NCAA championships.

He left to coach Furman this year, handing over the talent to assistant Tom Wasdin.

But Williams' new squad was as unimpressive as his earlier Jacksonville, teams, succumbing quickly to Gilmore and Co. while the partisan fans roared lusty approval.

Fourth-rated Penn thumped Temple 62-48 and No. 15 LaSalle turned back Niagara 95-79 in other games involving ranked teams.

Several teams have tried to slap a stall on the rugged Dolphins, who feature another 7-footer in Pembroke Burrows, and two slick backcourt men in Harold Fox and Vaughn Wedeking.

Last week Manhattan held high-scoring Jacksonville to 67 points. Only trouble was, Manhattan scored 40.

While Furman didn't go into an exaggerated stall, they did use a deliberate offense, calculated for the easy shot.

But they were dealing with a crack-shooting Dolphin five that connected on 75 per cent from the floor in the first half that shot the winners into an unsurmountable 46-27 lead.

Gilmore towered over Furman's 6-8 Russ Hunt and 6-6 Dave Whitener to score 18 points and grab 18 rebounds. Fox added 22 for the Dolphins, now 11-2.

Bernard Collier scored 18 for Furman, 7-6.

Penn shrugged off an atrocious 25 per cent shooting average in the first half that left the Quakers trailing 22-19. Bob Morse's 20-foot jumper gave the winners the lead early in the second half and they never lost it.

Temple came within one point at 31-30 and within two, 40-38, with 8:46 remaining. But the Quakers then launched a seven-point burst that nailed it.

Dave Wohl scored 16 for Penn, which won its 14th in a row. Mike Jones and Ollie Johnson each scored 11 to lead Temple, 5-9.

Ken Durrett whistled in 40 points and Bob Fields scored 30 as LaSalle sprinted to its 11th victory in 12 games. Marshall Wingate had 24 for Niagara.

Ron Thomas' 28 points powered Louisville past Cincinnati 85-72. The winners hit almost half of their field goal attempts and out-rebounded Cincinnati 63-42.

Drake notched the 200th career victory for Coach Maury John with a 130-73 blitz of Missouri-Kansas City. Five Drake players hit 12 or more points, led by Jeff Haliburton's 25. The Bulldogs shot 57 per cent from the floor.

Rich Yunkus' 30 points fired Georgia Tech to a 74-64 victory over Clemson: Will Robinson drilled in 27 to pace West Virginia over Penn State 71-62. Eastern Kentucky toppled Virginia Tech 86-79 behind George Bryant's 44 points; Rich Lyons and Bill Phillips each scored 20 73 to lead St. John's N.Y. over Seton Hall 88-70 and Bob Kissane pitched in 21 as Holy Cross stopped Springfield 74-63.

Elsewhere, it was Navy 59, Gettysburg 42; Air Force 83, Kearney State 73; Lafayette 79, American U. 68; Austin Peay 88, Bellarmine 87; Roanoke 96, Virginia Military 73, Akron 71, Buffalo U. 66 and Houston 130, Las Vegas-Nevada 73.

Plan Probe In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) —

Edward H. Cottrell, representative of Domes Stadium Inc., said Wednesday he hopes a probe by a federal grand jury into the Erie County domed stadium will clarify why the project has been stalled.

It was learned Wednesday that a federal investigation was underway looking into alleged bribery, conspiracy and extortion in the controversial stadium project.

Cottrell said he understands the investigation has been going on since last September but that no members of his firm has yet been subpoenaed to testify.

Cottrell said the firm, which seeks to operate a domed facility, was "very hopeful the federal probe will clarify once and for all what the dispute has been and explain why this project has not gone ahead."

The investigation, headed by Kurt M. Uhlenberg one of four deputy chiefs of the U.S. Justice Department's Organized Crime and Racketeering section, was convened last December and has heard testimony from at least one witness.

The witness reportedly was subpoenaed to testify Dec. 28 but refused to testify at that time. He appeared before the panel on Monday after being granted immunity from prosecution.

The witness reportedly told the grand jury about alleged payoffs to public officials in Erie County in connection with the long-stalled stadium project.

Flyers, Rangers Stage Sister-Kissing Act

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite vicious rumors to the contrary, every National Hockey League game that Philadelphia plays against New York does not end in a tie.

It only seems that way. The Flyers and Rangers pulled another sister-kissing act Wednesday night, but for New York this 3-3 deadlock was like a romantic embrace and for Philadelphia it was like a gentle peck. That's because the Rangers didn't get kissed until the last 19 seconds, when Rod Gilbert's second goal of the final period pulled them even.

In the only other games, Toronto whipped Vancouver 5-1 and Pittsburgh downed California 4-2.

The Rangers and Flyers had a sensational seven-game streak of frustrating ties broken in their first meeting this season when Philadelphia scored a 3-1 victory. It was the last time the clubs had seen each other in the geographical hop-scotch world of the NHL until Wednesday and the Rangers couldn't wait to get kissed again.

But Philadelphia wasn't in a romantic mood and the Flyers took advantage of some early Ranger lethargy to grab a 2-0 first period lead. Guy Gendron's second goal of the night made it 3-0 in the second period.

Defenseman Rod Seiling finally got the Rangers on the scoreboard in the final 1½ minutes of the second period when he backhanded a shot past goalie Bernie Parent, who was pinned by a pile of skaters on the play.

New York turned the pressure on Parent in the final 20 minutes. Gilbert connected just 31 seconds into the period and New York buzzed furiously around the goalie pressing for, of course, the tying goal.

The Rangers worked, but so did Parent and the Flyers hung on to their 3-2 edge. Then, in the final half-minute, the Rangers lifted goalie Ed Giacomin for an extra attacker. Walt Tkaczuk was the man.

Philadelphia missed a couple of chances at the vacant net and then the Rangers gained control and moved back into the Flyers' zone.

The puck moved meticulously from Jeane Ratelle to Tkaczuk to Gilbert, unguarded at Parent's left. Rod drilled it home for the tying goal.

Veteran defenseman Bob Baun set up four goals to help the Maple Leafs past the Canucks. Vancouver's Poul Popiel and Toronto's Jim McKenny traded first-period goals and then Jim Harrison snapped the tie in the second period and Paul Henderson, Ron Ellis and Dave Keon wrapped it up in the third.

Trailing 2-1, Pittsburgh overtook California on third-period goals by Nick Harbaruk, Bryan Hextall and Bob Woynowich, who tallied into an empty net with one second left.

The Golden Seals took a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Dennis Hextall and Bert Marshall but Ron Schock started the Penguins' comeback midway through the second stanza.

The adult education class in reading Hebrew will meet on Monday, Jan. 25, at 7:30 p. m. at the synagogue.
Anyone wishing to become a member of Agudas Achim may contact either Mrs. Robert Selinger, Jack Sheinvald or Rabbi Gershon.

Ahavath Israel

Religious services are held at Congregation Ahavath Israel, a Conservative Synagogue, at 100 Lucas Avenue, every Friday 8 p. m., and every Saturday 9:30 a. m. An Oneg Shabbat follows the Friday evening services. Everyone may attend all services.

This Friday evening the services will be conducted by Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman, who will also deliver a sermon entitled, "What's In The Name?", based on the Bible portion of the week. The liturgy will be chanted by Cantor David Katchen. The Mourners Prayer will be offered for the following whose yahrzeit will be observed in the coming week: Sylvia Feinberg, Fred Field, Peshe Leya Glasner, Tibie Riserashe Greenspan, Benjamin Heller, Max Millens, Rose Simon, Jacob Wasserlauf, Bella Weinstein, Rabbi Dave Weiss.

On Saturday morning, during the services, the Bar Mitzvah of Fred Horowitz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horowitz, will be celebrated. The Bar Mitzvah boy will chant the prophetic portion of the Bible Reading, and offer his Bar Mitzvah prayer. He will be given the lesson by the Rabbi and the Blessing. He will be presented with religious gifts by the Sisterhood and the Talmud Torah Board, and the USY, and with the Bar Mitzvah certificate by the Congregation. The preliminary service will be chanted by L. Larry Jacobs, followed by the morning service chanted by Cantor Katchen. A kiddush will follow in honor of the Bar Mitzvah.

Temple Emanuel
Dr. John Neumaier, president of the State University at New Paltz, will be the guest speaker at the 5th Annual Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom Memorial Sabbath Service to be held Friday evening at Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue. Dr. Neumaier's address is entitled, "Love and Knowledge: The Need for Both." The public is welcome to attend.

Services will be conducted by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, assisted by Dr. John Park and Robert Palmatier. The Sabbath lights will be kindled by Mrs. Herbert Bloom.

During services, the memories of the following persons will be invoked: Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom, Morris Weiner, Emilia Ronder, Samuel Kaplan, Jack Perlmutter, Abraham Silverman.

Following services, a question-and-answer period with Dr. Neumaier will be held in the Rabbi Bloom Memorial Hall. The Temple Brotherhood will sponsor the Oneg Shabbat.

The Institute of Jewish Studies will be held Sunday evening, Jan. 24, at 8 p. m. at the Jewish Community Center at 96 Maiden Lane.

The Adult Study Class on Basic Judaism will meet on Monday evening at 8 p. m. The group will discuss the Jewish view of human nature. Interested persons are welcome to attend the class.

Vol Injured Fighting Fire In Highland
One fireman was injured early today as Highland volunteers battled a wind-swept blaze that completely gutted a two-story frame house on Mackey Road.
Deputy Chief John Valentino was struck in the face by a falling timber as he and more than 70 other men battled to bring the early morning fire under control. Valentino sustained a facial cut and was later treated at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie. He was not detained at the hospital.
The blaze broke out at about 2 a. m. at the home of the Fiore family on Mackey Road, just off Route 9W. Highland Fire Chief Joseph Valentino said the fire apparently started in the downstairs section of the home near the staircase. Flames spread quickly throughout the rest of the house, he said. No cause has yet been determined.
Tankers from Milton and Clintondale joined Highland apparatus at the scene. Fire fighting operations were hampered by sub-zero temperatures and high winds.
The blaze was finally brought under control at about 6:45 a. m.
Members of the Fiore family escaped from the burning building unharmed. Their home, however, was completely gutted and all possessions were lost.

ATTENTION

You may be able to buy a house with little cash down. If you are an honorably discharged veteran, you may need no cash down payment. For example, payments of about $140 mo., including mortgage payments and taxes buys this 4 room ranch house on large pleasant lot with trees. Mo. payments may be less for qualified non-veterans with $2500 down payment. Call us for complete details on this and other homes you can buy with little or no cash.

Dear Abby

On 'Public Speaking'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with you, but not this time. You said, "the old lady must be off her rocker," because she wanted her married son to come to see her alone some time so just the two of them could talk about the daughter-in-law being present.

Did it ever occur to you that the mother and son might like to visit by themselves? I have three married sons and I rarely have a chance to talk to them alone. Their wives stick to them like glue every minute, and there are some things (strictly family matters) that I don't want to discuss in front of their wives.

Why can't daughters-in-law realize this and get lost once in a while when they visit their in-laws with their husbands?

PHILADELPHIAN: I fully understand that mothers (and fathers, too) may want to have a private word with their married children, but in the case you mentioned, the mother (in-bidding good-bye to her son and his wife) loudly said to her son, so that both could hear, "Next time, come alone so we can talk!"

Now that wasn't very nice, was it? The lady had to be unbelievably unkind incredibly insensitive, or she was just playing with a full deck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl of 26 who has been in love with a married man of 60 for eight years. His wife pays no attention to him, but she refuses to give him a divorce. He has told me he would marry me if he were free, but I shouldn't waste any more of my good years on him.

I love him, Abby, and have decided that even if he cannot marry me, I will continue to love him. Now he is telling me to forget him because there is no future in our love. I can't forget him. He has even suggested that I find a younger man. I don't want a younger man. What advice have you for me?

SAO PAULO LOVE: DEAR LOVE: One does not "forget" on command. Neither does one "stop loving" on command. Just make sure it is "love" and not an eight-year habit. When a man tells a woman to find a "younger man" it could mean that he would prefer an older woman.

DEAR ABBY: Are you a man? I can't believe that you're a woman the way you put all that stuff in your column from mistresses and "other women" warning the wife to always be Johnny on the spot whenever her husband decides he wants a little loving.

A wife can be clean and decent and willing, but all men are alike. Just let some good-looking gal come around and show a little interest in him, and he's ready, willing and able.

There is nothing wrong with me, believe me, I've had my chances, but I'm not the type. I know my husband loves me and I'm not afraid of losing him permanently, but he's no different from any other man. He just likes a change once in a while.

I know you won't print this, but if you do, please don't use my name. I don't want my husband to know how well I understand him.

WACO WOMAN

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

BIG AT 13: (Q.) My breasts are too large. I mean they're size 40 C and I'm just 13. My doctor agrees. He said I could have an operation, but should wait until I'm 15 or 16.

I wear a long bra, the kind that goes down to my waist. People stare at me. I dieted. The rest of me got slim, but not them.—Overloaded in Augusta, Me.

(A.) Follow your doctor's advice, and after a couple of years you may decide you do not want an operation. In that time, or maybe by the time you are 17, you may grow tall and slender.

With a body of that type, heavy breasts look great if up-lifted properly and worn with the right kind of clothes.

OUTSIDER: (Q.) My mother has to take care of another girl. She is four years old. She lives with us except on Saturday and Sunday. Her parents don't work those days and come to get her.

I am 13, and my mother is always telling me how stupid I am and how smart this kid is. She makes me feel so useless. Practically every night I cry myself to sleep because nobody cares about me. What can I do?—Jealous in Connecticut.

(A.) Your mother should see or sense what is happening to you. But she may be too busy or worried to notice. So you will have to tell her.

Tell her you know she is keeping the little girl to help out financially, and you appreciate that. Tell her you know it is not easy for her. But tell her that you are her daughter and you love her and you need her to love you.

I believe if you will talk to her about how lonely you have been she will see the truth and perhaps change. I sincerely hope so.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. R. stamped, addressed envelope. IN MEMPHIS: Marry him!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:10 a.m. WKNY-1490)

January 22, 1971

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are under unusually good aspects to go to those with whom you have any sort of contact to let them know just what you expect of them. Discuss with them how they can carry through what you want them to do and then come to a new understanding. Communicating with those at a distance is also important and can have excellent results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact recent acquaintances and learn more about them, gain their backing for your ideas. Some study will show you how to advance with greater swiftness. Show fairness with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Making collections, paying your bills, and improving relations with others is fine in a.m. Keep any promises you have made. Show thoughtfulness for mate and devotion will increase.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Sit down with associates and come to terms where some new ideas you have are concerned. Show that you are most cooperative. Clear up any points of differences with others easily now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into the work ahead of you and show much efficiency as well as imagination. This is the right day to go over certain arrangements with co-workers, so stop procrastinating. Drive with utmost care.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you get your work done early, you find you can then have a delightful time with congenials at recreations you like. Doing whatever will make your job produce the finest results is wise. Control your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now come to a far better understanding with those who dwell with you. Outline new ideas you have. Buying new items to add to your home for more comfort or beauty is wise. Don't forget to pay those bills.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact persons who can help you to improve routines, conditions you are currently grappling with. Pep up present allies, too. Being adroit with an associate you particularly like helps much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have every opportunity to add to present abundance by starting the wheels rolling in the right direction now. Ideas given by an expert can be of great assistance to you now. Get to bed early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to have a wonderful time with good friends today, so spend your spare time with them. Take those treatments that can make you healthier and more attractive. Happiness is your for the right thinking you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you sit down quietly and think, you can solve those private problems very easily and well. Showing mate your finest consideration makes this a romantic evening. Forget that chip-on-your-shoulder attitude.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make as many new contacts and friends as you can and get together with them on whatever is of mutual interest. Entertaining brings excellent results. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) One who has control over your affairs can now give you added support you need to make the most of your finest talents. Get into some civic affair that can be very helpful. Show your fine ability.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young energetic people who speaks out clearly and directly with others and will take on problems of worldly and philosophical nature so be sure to give the finest education you can afford, then the fine potential here can be realized to its fullest. Give religious training early so that your progeny will have greater regard for the idealistic things of life as well. Sports, music are fine also.

Henry Fonda Returns to TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Fonda returned to television Wednesday night in a new comedy series on ABC called "The Smith Family."

Fonda is a consummate actor. He is an enduring leading man because he has a style and grace that enables him to transcend his material and bestow upon it an integrity not always inherent in the script.

That, alas, is the case here. The sensation of watching the premier episode of this new series was one we've seen before. It is as if Fred MacMurray or Brian Keith or John Forsythe was away from "My Three Sons" or "Family Affair" or "To Rome with Love" and Fonda was filling in. It doesn't matter which one, all are 30 minute tranquilizers. The only difference is that Fonda plays a police detective whose family becomes involved in his cases.

The show is out of the same shop that created the other three, Don Feddersen Productions.

There is nothing in "The Smith Family" to get upset about.

Fonda is such a gentle, understanding and thoughtful parent that real life fathers should take lessons. The kids behave like angels, even under the most trying circumstances. The mother, played by Janet Blair, resists every temptation to meddle and set everything aright in the manner of matriarchal comedies of the past.

On the other hand, there is nothing here that really, lifts the spirit. Of course, it massages our illusions and fantasies and hopes. Deep down, we know we're really like the Smiths, even if we don't live that way.

There is nothing wrong with handing people a little comfort and solace. Goodness, knows, we are hit over the head enough by the scolds. The wish is that this show had been done with more style, more insight, more wit, more guts, and had more meat and bones to it.

Fonda was last seen in a series in "The Deputy" some years back and his show is the first among a flock of series which will feature movie stars signed earlier this year. The others are scheduled to debut in the fall.

JDL DEMONSTRATION — Wearing concentration camp-like uniforms, Israel Stern, Jacob Friedman and Steven Reuben (L-R) members of the militant Jewish Defense League (JDL) demonstrate outside Soviet Mission to the U. N. in New York City, protesting oppression of Soviet Jewry. JDL officials announced harassment of Russian officials would cease but that demonstrations outside the mission will continue. Reuben reportedly wears an authentic uniform of the Buchenwald concentration camp. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Israelis in Gaza Capital Get Orders to 'Behave'

GAZA (AP) — Israeli security forces have been told to cut out the rough stuff in the violence torn capital of the occupied Gaza Strip.

Informed sources said "special orders to behave" were issued following a number of complaints of beatings by the tough border police who were sent into Gaza City 11 days ago. They were ordered in because grenade attacks by Palestinian guerrillas, mostly against other Arabs, had become daily occurrences.

Israel captured the 30-mile-long Gaza Strip and its population of 400,000, many of them Palestinian refugees, in the 1967 war. The area had been under Egyptian military rule since the Palestine war in 1948.

The border police reportedly beat up suspected guerrillas during questioning and identification checks. Dr. Merrill Moore of Nashville, Tenn., chief doctor at the Baptist Hospital, said he treated some of those rounded up who required medical attention, but he said their injuries were minor.

Moore said the number of such cases "peaked" last week and has gone down since.

Some Israelis admit that the police, many of them army veterans or members of Moslem minorities inside Israel, may have overreacted to the situation.

Without referring to the methods of the police, a military spokesman said the "increased presence" has proved effective. There have been only three terrorist incidents since the extra forces arrived, he said.

"Nobody likes it much to govern the Gaza Strip by force," he added. "We hope that the period will be a short one."

In the Israeli parliament, one member said the behavior of the security troops has been detrimental to the morale and principles of the army.

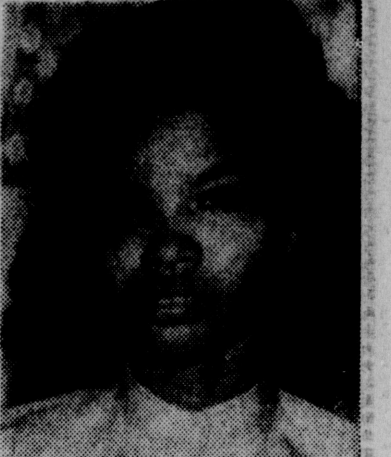

Interior Minister Yosef Burg replied that no Israeli-held territory would be allowed to become a "lawless enclave of murder and terrorism."

Meanwhile, the Israeli army for more than two weeks has cordoned off the Al Shatti refugee camp, which houses about 30,000 Palestinians along the beach front.

Two major thoroughfares in Gaza City have been put under round-the-clock curfew because of the number of grenade attacks along them. Israeli soldiers guard the intersections; residents go about their business in side alleys.

Along Omar el Mukhtar Street—the main boulevard—many shops are closed because customers were scared away by violence. In the evenings, patrols challenge everyone, and if a man doesn't stop, he invites trouble.

WRONG GIRL — The South Vietnamese government blamed the French consulate for a mixup that sent the wrong girl all the way to Africa posing as the long-lost Vietnamese daughter of Central African President Jean Bedel Bokassa. The impostor is now under house arrest after a Saigon newspaper produced "conclusive proof" that another girl was the real Martine Bokassa. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Finn Historian First Candidate As U.N. Successor to Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A 47-year-old Finn is the first man to enter the field to succeed U Thant as secretary-general of the United Nations.

Ambassador Max Jakobson, a historian and former newsman, has headed Finland's U.N. delegation since April 1965. He entered his country's foreign service 12 years before as press attaché in Washington.

Thant announced Monday that he would retire when his term ends in December. After his announcement, the U.N. delegates from the other Nordic countries—Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Iceland—met with Jakobson and endorsed his candidacy, a Nordic diplomat said.

The Finnish Foreign Ministry said on Wednesday that it was consulting other governments and was gratified to note that Jakobson was "widely recognized as a person who... fulfills the requirements made on the secretary-general."

The endorsement of both the United States and the Soviet Union is crucial to any candidate for secretary-general, but neither U.S. nor Soviet spokesmen would comment on Jakobson's prospects.

"It is too early to comment on questions of succession at this time," said a spokesman for the U.S. mission. "We, of course, have a high regard for Ambassador Jakobson personally and for the role which Finland is playing in the United Nations."

"No comment," said Soviet

Another Soviet source pointed out that Thant "is still secretary-general." Asked if the Russians think Thant should stay, he replied, "Well, let's think about it."

Many U.N. diplomats expressed belief that the U.S. and Soviet governments could persuade Thant to stay for another two to five years if they convinced him they could not agree on a successor.

Others mentioned as prospective candidates include Ambassador H.S. Amerasinghe of Ceylon, who said last month he would not mind being considered if the big powers and U.N. members generally wanted him; ex-President Eduardo Frei of Chile and Alberto Lleras Camargo of Colombia; U.N. Ambassadors Joao Augusto de Araujo Castro of Brazil, Kurt Waldheim of Austria and Alfonso Garcia-Robles of Mexico; Prince Sadruddin Khan, the U.N. high commissioner for refugees; Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore; Chief S. O. Adebayo of Nigeria, executive director of the U.N. Institute for Training and Research; and Robert Gardiner of Ghana, executive secretary of the U.N. Economic Commission for Africa.

The secretary-general is nominated by the Security Council and elected by the General Assembly. Any of the five permanent members of the council—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China—can block a candidate with its veto, but if the United States and the Soviet Union agree, a veto from any of the other three is most unlikely.

Anglican Dean Jailed After Race Criticism

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—Federal police Wednesday night arrested the Anglican dean of Johannesburg, an outspoken critic of South Africa's policy of strict racial separation.

Leslie Stradling, Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, said the very Rev. Gonville A. French-Beytagh, 58, was taken from his Johannesburg office to the capital of Pretoria for questioning.

Stradling said he did not know whether any charges had been filed against French-Beytagh, whose office was searched and some papers seized by police.

Police declined comment other than to say French-Beytagh would not be back in time to conduct an early morning service today in St. Mary's Cathedral in Johannesburg. Pretoria is 50 miles north of Johannesburg.

French-Beytagh has been a vigorous critic of apartheid—South Africa's racial segregation policy—and has taken issue with the government for its growing sanctions against other clergymen in the country.

He also recently challenged Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster's assertion that God is on the side of South Africa. "God is not on the side of the National party (the governing political party in South Africa), or any other party," French-Beytagh said.

"What really matters is whether the national party or any other party is on God's side."
